

YANKEES BEAT PIRATES IN OPENER

BASEBALL CLASSIC OPENS BEFORE HUGE PITTSBURGH CROWD

Two Thousand In All-Night Vigil—Ruth Big Attraction

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 5.—With the annual world series classic opening here today, Pittsburgh was a-tingle with excitement, its natives keyed up to a nervous tension approaching frenzy, fans here from all parts of the country and contending ball clubs, the Pittsburgh Pirates and the New York Yankees, restlessly awaiting the hour when they will don their spangles and go forth to battle.

Manager Miller Huggins of the Yankees announced this morning that he probably would pitch Waite Hoyt, a world series veteran, in the opening game, and Manager Donie Bush of the Pirates indicated he would send Ray Kremer to the firing line. Both are right-handers.

Fans stormed Forbes Field in droves long before the gates were scheduled to be opened at 10 o'clock this morning. The weather was cool, with a football tang in the air, and top coats were comfortable. The weather forecaster, however, predicted that it would warm up somewhat by game time, 1:30 this afternoon.

At dawn 2,000 dived in the wool bleacher fans, who had kept an all-night vigil at the ball park, were strung out in long lines at the ticket gates. By 7 o'clock this morning fully 5,000 were fighting to hold their places against newcomers. All reserved seats had been sold and it is a certainty that a capacity crowd of 42,000 will witness the opening game.

The first man in line for a bleacher seat, and determinedly fighting to hold it, was Ralph Arkle, of Pittsburgh, who had been sitting astride a wooden box since 7:00 o'clock yesterday morning. Second in line was Lester McMichael, a youth of Connersville, Ind., who made a 350-mile trip by automobile to see the series. Next was William Peters, an ex-army veteran of Baltimore, who took precautionary measures by bringing a gun. Following him was George Sliker, who came all the way from Worcester, Mass., to see Babe Ruth crash a homer.

Ruth, in fact, is the star attraction as far as the fans are concerned. Only once before has the great home run slugger been on the scene of today's exhibition game, that was in an exhibition game. The natives are going to the game in the manner of a crowd to a circus and in the back of their heads reclines the fear that the elephant, Mr. Ruth is going to break loose and spoil the show.

Betting odds changed at the eleventh hour, coming down close to even money because of the injury sustained by Herb Pennock, star southpaw of the Yanks, in batting practice yesterday. The New

REPUBLICAN CHIEFS LOOK FOR AL SMITH TO LEAD "DEMMIES"

G. O. P. Convention Does Not Under Estimate New York Governor—Predict Either Dawes Or Coolidge

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The spectre of Al Smith hung over the Republican national committee's "open house" here today. Republican chieftains, assembled in Washington at the invitation of Chairman William M. Butler, for the most part were agreed that New York's popular governor looked to be the most likely Democratic presidential nominee and none of them was under-estimating his strength and public appeal. On all sides it was admitted that with Smith making opposition campaign the Republicans are in for a fight to continue control of the national administration.

The drawing powers of such outstanding figures as Vice President Charles G. Dawes, Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, former Governor Frank O. Lowden, of Ill., and former Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes, were being weighed most carefully as the national committeemen entered the third day of their "informal meetings."

And as the search continued for an expression of sentiment sufficiently solidified to warrant the belief that a man had been found, who could defeat Governor Smith, a little group of Republican elders opened up a whispering campaign that it would have to be "either

WIDOW IN JERSEY'S MURDER MYSTERY TO BE HEARD BY JURY

Mrs. Lillendahl Is Called Before Grand Jurors

HAMMONTON, N. J., Oct. 5.—Mrs. Margaret Lillendahl, principal figure in New Jersey's latest murder mystery, will be summoned before the grand jury tomorrow to tell the story of the slaying of her aged husband, Dr. William Lillendahl, on an isolated road near here five weeks ago.

The widow who refused to revisit the scene of the murder and re-enact the tragedy, will be put through the ordeal of narrating in detail how her husband came to be found in his automobile on the lonely road, shot to death.

Assistant Prosecutor Cameron Hinkle, of Atlantic County, said if he would ask the grand jury for a murder indictment, he did not say against whom his request would be directed.

Mrs. Lillendahl contends her husband was shot to death by two men who attempted to attack her while she was driving with the physician. No trace has been found of Willis Beach, poultry farmer and confidant of Mrs. Lillendahl, who is wanted as a material witness in the case.

FEDERAL SOLDIERS SEARCH FOR GENERAL GOMEZ ON WARRANT

Alleged Leader To Face Court Martial If Captured

LAREDO, Texas, Oct. 5.—Further suppression by the Mexican government of all those connected with the revolutionary movement launched throughout the republic last Sunday night continued today with federal troops searching for General Gomez, who was charged in a presidential warrant with revolutionary activities in Mexico City and Vera Cruz.

According to reports from the Mexican capital if he is caught Gomez faces immediate court martial and probable execution unless he escapes to the United States. It is regarded probable that the precedent set by the government in the executions of General Serrano and his followers will not be altered in Gomez's case.

Gomez, with Serrano, was a candidate for the presidency on the "no re-elections" ticket. They both opposed General Varo Obregon, former president, who is a candidate on a platform that calls for a continuation of the policies of the Calles administration. Both men are said to have prevailed upon high army officers to desert the Calles government and swing the troops under them to the banner of the revolution.

While the government at Mexico City contended that the revolt amounted only to an uprising of small garrisons, reports given out by anti-Calles refugees in Laredo were that more than 3,000 troops had revolted in the capital and that President Calles is practically a prisoner. These reports were received with great reserve.

Reports here were that General Gomez might be attempting to reach Vera Cruz where he was formerly military governor and where he is said to have many strong followers. It is regarded possible that if he reaches there he may be able to muster sufficient force to hold the government troops in check for many weeks and may be able to set up a provisional government.

This note was being stuck in hotel lobbies and upper-floor rooms in the face of an apparently unanimous agreement that the President meant to eliminate himself finally when he said "I do not choose."

The argument presented, on its face at least, sounded convincing. One man, long prominent in the business of naming Republican presidents, outlined the situation as follows:

"Lowden will go into the first ballot with perhaps as many as 200 votes. Hoover will have a block—not so many as his supporters now hope for. Dawes, who will not permit his name to be used in advance of the convention, will have a few. The rest will be scattered among such favorite sons as Senator Curtis, of Kansas, Hughes, of Indiana. There will be no majority. The convention will go through three or four ballots with some trading. Dawes will reach his maximum strength. If that is a majority, we will have our nominee."

"But if Dawes fails to reach that mark—or even any other man—within a comparatively few ballots, the desire to draft President Coolidge cannot be held back. It is true that most of the party leaders do not like the president personally, but they are practical men, looking for the biggest vote getter. They want a man who can carry state, county and municipal tickets with him. They know Mr. Coolidge's past record for bringing in a majority and they fear any thing savoring of the disastrous deadlock the Democrats staged at New York in 1924."

"It will be Dawes, or it must be Coolidge." This particular Republican leader explained carefully that the president's sincerity in wanting to withdraw was not doubted. He admitted that those who favored the draft were openly to further Mr. Coolidge's candidacy in such a way as to bring forth another statement from the White House.

"One more little shove," he said, "and we couldn't nominate the president if we wanted. If anything is done publicly in his behalf he will issue an amplification of his Rapid City statement and our chance nothing and work for delegations either uninstructed or pledged to favorite sons. If we can get a nominee in the early ballots, well and good. If not, place a little bet on Calvin Coolidge."

The Republican leaders had breakfast at the White House this morning. Attaches said it was an informal gathering and no political significance was attached to it.

GERMANS WILL LAND AT LISBON—WILL FLY OVER AZORES.

CALAIS, France, Oct. 5.—An airplane, believed to be the Junkers trans-Atlantic plane which left Norderney yesterday afternoon, passed over Cape Gris Nez Lighthouse at 7:30 o'clock this morning.

BREST, France, Oct. 5.—The steamship Albert Le Borgne reported by wireless today that an airplane, believed to be the Junkers trans-Atlantic hydroplane, was sighted at 10 a. m., flying southward near the Armen Lighthouse.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—A German plane believed to have been the Junkers D-1230 on its way to Lisbon was sighted at 6:55 a. m. today over Calais, according to an exchange telegraph dispatch from that city.

The plane disappeared to the west. Weather conditions were reported bad.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The Junkers hydro-airplane D-1230 which will attempt a trans-Atlantic flight to the United States by way of the Azores took off from Schellinwoude, Holland, at 5:40 a. m. today, according to a Central Press news dispatch from Amsterdam.

The planes expected to land at Lisbon before reaching the Azores.

The first leg of the flight consisted of a flight from Norderney, Germany, to Amsterdam, a distance of 130 miles. Frederic Loose, who was in the monoplane Bremen, which made an unsuccessful trans-Atlantic attempt in August, is piloting the new plane.

The October grand jury re-convened in Common Pleas Court Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock to resume consideration of a long list of cases on the criminal docket. None of the cases are of major importance.

It was expected that the jury would complete its work and make a full report Wednesday afternoon. Seven cases had been considered when the jury adjourned Monday and an equal number remained for examination Wednesday.

They had just listened to the radio program arranged by The Xenia Gazette and heard Graham McNamee call the play by play story of the game so vividly as to almost suffice for not being present at Forbes Field.

Fans voted the radio play another huge success. It is to be continued each day during the series.

WOMAN PASSENGER

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—The Junkers hydroplane which left Norderney yesterday afternoon for a trans-Atlantic flight, carried a woman passenger, Mme. Lilly Dillenz, wife of Richard Dillenz, a Viennese architect, according to reports received here.

Before the hop off it was reported that a woman would make the flight, but when the machine hopped off yesterday no mention was made of any such passenger. Instead, it was stated that the machine carried four men—three pilots and a mechanic.

A dispatch from Vienna today stated that Mme. Dillenz had planned to make the trip and was believed to be on board. Mme. Dillenz is a painter, illustrator and actress.

The woman's father, Carl Hollitzer, a painter, when informed that his daughter was planning an airplane trip to America, expressed utmost surprise.

NEW OCTOBER JURY AWARDS JUDGMENT IN DAMAGE ACTION

After deliberating forty minutes, the October petit jury, which convened in Common Pleas Court Tuesday morning, returned a verdict for $200 damages in favor of Prudence M. Watson Tuesday afternoon in her damage suit against Frank Wilson, based on personal injuries suffered in an auto accident one-half mile west of Bellbrook August 4 at 9 p. m.

Mr. Watson sued for $1,000, charging that serious cuts about the face, have disfigured her for life.

The trial consumed the greater part of the day. The case was given to the jury at about 3:20 p. m. and a verdict returned at 4 o'clock.

Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy informed members of the petit jury before dismissing them, that he had been unexpectedly assigned to preside on the Cuyahoga County bench for the next four weeks by Carrington T. Marshall, chief justice of the Ohio Supreme Court.

For this reason the jury will not be called for service again until the second week in November, as no jury trials have been assigned for the intervening period. Judge Gowdy will leave for Cleveland Monday.

The damage suit of Prudence Watson was the first of three filed against Wilson, based on the same accident. Two others are pending and have not been assigned for trial, including an action filed by Harry Watson, the father, who asks $500 damages for injuries sustained by his son, Harry, Jr., and a third for $165 damages, including $150 for damage to his auto and $15 for medical expenses.

Wilson was accused of carelessness and responsibility for the accident. The Watsons charged he turned off all his lights except the small parking lights in approaching their machine and that they were unable to see his car coming. Wilson was also accused of driving on the wrong side of the road.

The jury is composed of:

Howard Hurley, Ernestine W. Green, Anna Banks, Catherine Osterly, Walter Graham, H. K. Hartsock, Ervin Harner, Perry Thomas, James Hite, C. D. Clayton, William Phillips and Pearl Bickett.

TRACTION COMPANY ABSOLVED OF BLAME

The Springfield and Xenia Traction Co., and employees on the car that struck the automobile of Mrs. Arthur Howard, near Yellow Springs, a week ago, resulting in the death of Margaret Howard, 7, were absolved from blame in the accident by Coroner F. M. Chambliss following an inquest in his office Wednesday morning.

Jacob Bowser, motorman and John Shaw, another company employee, who were in charge of the car, were questioned as well as Charles E. Service, superintendent of the company, who questioned people living near Hyde's Crossing, where the accident occurred, but did not see the collision. Several testified that the motorman sounded the whistle of the car, however, "An unavoidable accident" was the coroner's verdict.

Mrs. A. G. Adams, Rainier, Africa, will be the missionary speaker. Mrs. Reid, Greenville, will tell of her visit to the Indian Mission at Ganado, Ariz. Mrs. William H. Telford, Xenia, will speak on Wooster Society of Missions.

There will be the usual box lunch and entertainment by the Clifton Church.

Mr. T. C. Owens, Bellbrook Ave., who has been seriously ill, was removed to Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, Monday, for observation, preceding an operation. His condition was slightly improved Wednesday.

Miss Dorothea Pagett, Xenia, has enrolled at Wittenberg College. She graduated from Central High School with the class of 1927.

Mrs. J. C. Morgan, Cleveland, is spending several days with Xenia relatives. She accompanied Mrs. Maurice Bradford, of Cleveland, and Mrs. Joshua Brown, who has been visiting at her daughter's home in that city, on the motor trip to this city.

The young men and women, members of Mrs. George Street's Sunday School class, Trinity M. E. Church, will hold a covered dish supper at the home of Mrs. Street, E. Third St., Thursday evening at 6 o'clock. Every member is urged to attend and anyone desiring to become a member is also welcome. After supper, the class will attend services at the First M. E. Church, in a body.

Mrs. Douglas Custis and two children, of Cleveland, will arrive in Xenia Wednesday night for a visit with relatives.

Mrs. Gill Schweibold and son, Stephen, of Detroit, Mich., are visiting Mrs. Schweibold's mother, Mrs. William Hoog and other Xenia relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schweibold, High St., are announcing the birth of their fourth child, a son, Tuesday evening.

The Misses Marie and Helen Griffin, Springfield are recovering from tonsil and adenoid operations performed in this city Wednesday.

When to Suspect Acid Scalp

It isn't that that dulls the hair. Nor frequent washing or curling. If your hair lacks all life and lustre, it may be due to a condition you can correct in twenty-four hours. Acid scalp.

Neutralize the acid secretions of the scalp and your hair will have the lovely sheen that makes any hair so attractive. Danderine will do this; and as its name implies, Danderine is a scientific dandruff dissolver. Five minutes after Danderine is applied, every particle of dandruff has been dissolved!

Acid scalp should be suspected if your hair is at all stiff or stringy, or won't hold a wave. Another sign—not so easily detected in the hair when it is warm, or after exercise. And for thirty-five cents at any drugstore, you can get a bottle of Danderine that will keep your hair soft and sweet and "on its good behavior" for weeks!

ORIENT HILL P. T. A. MAKES PLANS FOR DRIVE.
Mrs. Herman Eavey, president, appointed her committees as part of the Federated P. T. A. organization in the one-day drive for funds to feed underprivileged children of the city, when Orient Hill P. T. A. met at the school Monday afternoon.

The social committee announced a community party, Friday, October 21, plans for which will be announced later. Mrs. John Beach, resigned as chairman of the ways and means committee and Mrs. Lee Roy Smith was appointed in her place.

In a short talk, Miss Rosetta Francis, principal of Orient Hill, said the underprivileged children of the school seem to have improved this year, thanks to the work of the P. T. A. "We have gone in the homes and tried to show the mothers how to rear their little ones with the limited means they have," she said.

She congratulated the work of helping the children. Miss Pauline K. Haynes of the Central High faculty, told of her trip through Europe this summer, and recounted many amusing incidents of the tour.

DAYTON WOMAN GIVES ART TALK TO CLUB HERE.
The Junior Woman's Club had its first meeting of the season Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. D. Steele and began its year's work in a most delightful manner when Miss Paye Cleveland, teacher of English at Steele High School, Dayton, O., gave a charming talk on Italian Art.

She painted an interesting background for her subject by giving a brief historical and political sketch of Italy before taking her audience on a personally conducted tour of some of the most interesting and famous art treasures of this richest of all art countries. Her talk which she enriched with accounts of her recent visit to Italy was made especially delightful to her hearers by the use of many excellent photographs loaned by the Dayton Art Institute. —M. Dr. George Davis and Mr. Lewis Anderson, left Wednesday for northern Canada, where they will spend several weeks at their hunting camp. Mrs. Davis will be with her mother, Mrs. Eliza Ann Smith, New Jasper, during their absence.

EVANGELIST SAYS MAN MUST BE BORN AGAIN TO BE SAVED

"Every child is born devoid of divine life. By nature, we are all the children of wrath. Every man naturally is in a state of double deadness, dead by nature and dead in trespasses and sins. You may be courteous, refined, educated, but you are as devoid of salvation as a corpse in a graveyard, until you are born again." These were among the statements of the Rev. W. R. Cain, evangelist at the Church of the Nazarene, Tuesday night.

He continued: "No matter how nice you are, you may belong to the elite, you may be able to trace your ancestry back to some noted person, you may have all the accomplishments that this world can offer, but if you ever get to Heaven, you must be born again.

"The evidences of salvation are two-fold. First, there is the external evidence, or what we do. We do what we do, because we are what we are. If our external life measures up to God's standard we must have an inside reason.

"Second, the internal evidences, which is the witness of the spirit, the inside divine evidence that one has been made a new creature, and that your appetites, desires and very nature has been radically changed. If one has really been born again, he will produce the fruits of the Spirit as set forth in Galatians, 5. John, the apostle, said that one 'born of God doth not commit sin' but will abstain from the very appearance of evil. The more you walk with God, the more perfect you are trained for sin.

"Again, one born of God will overcome the world and will have an affinity for the things of God and a vehement desire to do his will." Previous to the sermon, the Rev. Mr. Cain sang "The City Four-square," one of his own compositions. Services will be held each night this week except Saturday, at 7:30.

THURSDAY PRAYER MEETING SCHEDULE

HENRY L. FARRELL ON VACATION; TO MISS WORLD SERIES

Henry L. Farrell, day sports editor of the United Press, has been granted a thirty-day leave of absence to recover from a slight attack of intestinal indigestion and to take of himself. He will not "cover" the world series baseball games, it has been learned by members of his family in Xenia.

"Bud" became ill about two weeks ago and was under the care of a physician and nurse in New York. Against the advice of his doctor, he attended the Dempsey-Tunney championship fight at Chicago, and then came to Xenia to join his wife, spending a day here Sunday, September 25 at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Shoup, E. Main St.

Mrs. Farrell accompanied her husband to New York the following day and "Bud" was notified that he had been granted a month's leave of absence, which included his two week's vacation, in appreciation of his service in reporting the Chicago fight under his physical handicap.

Mr. and Mrs. Farrell plan to spend the time in New York where the noted sports writer who has been placed on a diet will be able to see a physician occasionally. Had he known of the fact that he would be given a leave of absence from his newspaper work, before returning to New York, Farrell would probably have remained in Xenia for a visit with relatives.

BEGG WILL SPEAK

CHAPPING - SORES Resinol

One treatment soothes the irritation and starts the healing if you use Resinol

"SICK-HEADACHES?"

Torturing, maddening! Most ailments trace them to a lazy liver, constipation and a sour-sick stomach. Poison of fermented foods retained, instead of passing, is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissues, it causes congestion and that acute, sickening pain.

Blackburn's Casca-Royal Pills quickly and surely remove the cause by stimulating the liver, toning up the bowels, nerves, making the poison-ferments move on and out, thus purifying the blood and curing the headaches. The effect is almost instantaneous.

Women, because of their sensitive organism are especially prone to periodical headaches, should not suffer if a drugstore is nearby—for Blackburn's Casca-Royal Pills have helped millions during the past 25 years. Non-secret formula, small, sweet, prompt and "Better Than Castor Oil." Two sizes 15c-30c.

No More Gas In Stomach and Bowels
If you wish to be permanently relieved of gas in stomach and bowels, take Baumann's Gas Tablets, which are prepared especially for stomach gas and all the bad effects resulting from gas pressure.

That empty, gnawing feeling at the pit of the stomach disappear; that anxious nervous feeling with heart palpitation will vanish, and you will again be able to take a deep breath without discomfort.

One drowsy, sleepy feeling after dinner will be replaced by a desire for entertainment. Bloating will cease. Your limbs, arms and fingers will no longer feel stiff and "go sleep" because Baumann's Gas Tablets prevent gas from interfering with the circulation. Get the results in the yellow package, at any good drug store. Price $1.

The fair is under the auspices of the vocational agriculture department of the Beaver Creek High School.

Prizes will be offered for all classes of farm products, including both old and new corn, wheat, oats, soy beans, small seeds, fruit, and vegetables. From the farm home prizes will be given on baked goods, canned goods, needle work, flowers, and school lunch.

Exhibitors will be divided into two classes, one class for adults and high school pupils, and one for the pupils of the grade schools. Entries made by pupils of the district schools will not compete with entries in the open class except for sweepstakes. Prizes will be given to the pupils for the individual entries.

In addition, prizes will be awarded to the district schools on the following basis: each entry will count one point, each first prize will count six points, each second prize will count four points, each third prize will count two points. The school receiving the highest total number of points will be awarded first prize as school district. This point basis is being used in order to facilitate the judging.

A program of stunts will be given each night of the fair. These stunts will be given by the various classes of the high school and the organizations of the community.

DOING YOUR SHARE

In a recent address on "Civic Leadership, Development and Responsibility," Samuel Insull, President of the Commonwealth Edison company, of Chicago, said:

"I hold that every man owes something besides his taxes to the community in which he lives. The more he has been favored mentally and materially by fortune, the more he owes. In discharge of that debt, he is under obligation to do for the community something that he does not get paid for, something that he does not make money by. His obligation to do this is not just a once-in-a-while obligation; it is a continuing obligation, and what he does in discharge of it should be limited only by his abilities and his opportunities.

"A true sense of civic responsibility springs from recognition of this obligation. Individual response to it produces the civic leadership that assures continuous, well balanced, symmetrical community development—the development that provides for social and spiritual needs, so to speak, as well as for the physical and material needs of a community.

"It is to the men of constructive vision that we owe the welding of this continent into one homogeneous whole—the greatest amongst the modern creation of empire. It is to this constructive class that we owe the development of our great communities and our great businesses, and from them you should draw your inspiration for taking your share of civic responsibility and community service."

AWAITING COMMAND

Aladdin had but to rub his magic lamp and immediately a slave appeared to do bidding.

The Arabian Nights have now been so far outdone that every man, woman and child in the United States has 900 slaves waiting at command. This means that, reckoned in terms of man-power, our 110 millions have, in the field of electricity alone, 100 billion man-power at their service. A new power house in New York City will alone deliver more than 10 million man-power.

These invisible slaves, far swifter and more obedient than the slaves of any Pharaoh or rajah, light our streets and homes, drive our chariots with a speed and safety unknown to the ancient world, sew our clothing with a swiftness and accuracy impossible to human fingers, sweep and dust, bake and boil, wash and iron, and stand ready to do a thousand other things that we have not yet asked them to do.

POLITICAL EXCITEMENT

President Coolidge eliminated himself as a candidate in 1928 because "he has the feeling that the country is getting tired of him and of the sameness of comfortable but not very colorful conditions."

Such is the opinion of Judson C. Welliver, widely known publicist, who has served both Presidents Harding and Coolidge as a confidential advisor.

Mr. Welliver, now editor of a Pittsburgh newspaper, also declares in the Review of Reviews that the President's famous "I do not choose" statement was intended as an unqualified renunciation of a 1928 candidacy and not, as has been conjectured, as a subtle means of leaving the way open for his drafting by the Republican convention. "The last thing in his mind was to have uncertainty about his meaning," it is added.

Of the several considerations which he says prompted Mr. Coolidge to deliberately forestall a probable renomination, Mr. Welliver counts as first the President's feeling that the public while recognizing the calm efficiency of his administration, is ripe for the excitement of heated political issues.

The Way of the World

WORTH LISTENING TO

A former U. S. senator, A. O. Stanley, speaking at the national Moose convention, tells us some straight facts. He says:

"There is a lack of human charity in the world today, a tendency toward acrimonious discussion and a disposition to evoke pain and terror and induce men to agree in political theory and religious dogma. This tendency is not progress but merely an innovation. It is a tendency toward darkness and not toward the light of a new dawn."

There is still much of that spirit in the world. There is even much of it in America. The senator, perhaps, is a bit pessimistic. Observers, despite much loose talk, must see that there is a growing spirit of tolerance in the world. It comes slowly—but it comes.

INNOVATION

How true it is that much which passes at first glance for progress proves to be merely innovation. Much reform might well move backward instead of forward.

WHY A DIARY?

A Wisconsin man, at 93, says he wishes he had kept a diary. The habit of keeping a diary has gone somewhat out of fashion. It should. What's the good of keeping a daily journal if you have nothing important to put in it? The time might better be devoted to doing jobs worthy of record.

ANY JOB

Trouble with most young fellows recently out of school is that they are looking for the "right sort of a job." Wrigley, gum king, who began work feeding horses for a few cents a day, tells youth to ask for a job without asking what it is and then tear into it. The main thing is to learn to WORK. Time enough after that to look for the right job.

INFORMATION

In an advertisement one reads these words: "If you ever hang up an information sign, be prepared to inform."

Few people have much accurate information. We all hate to admit we don't know. Ask the average man a question and he will pretend he knows the answer. Pride and vanity keep us from admitting ignorance. And yet, to admit ignorance makes a better impression than to stall at giving information which we do not have.

The world is in tremendous need of information—but be sure you have some to give before you hang up your sign.

The Daybook

or A

New Yorker

By
Burton Rascoe

DAYBOOK
NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Not content with being the mother of one of the greatest polo players of all time, Tommy Hitchcock, Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, senior, herself a fine horsewoman, is schooling a team of wealthy youngsters at Westbury, L. I. Among her pupils, who range in age from 8 to 12, are Julian Peabody, Thomas Le Boulle, and Nancy and Devereaux Milburn. The Milburn children are the offspring of the renowned captain and back of the American International Four. This is the team which has just distinguished itself so signally in beating the British Army and India team, challengers for the International cup. Possibly by the time Nancy Milburn is out of the teens, there will be an important polo team made up entirely of women.

The games I find most beautiful and most thrilling to watch are, in the order named: polo, yacht racing, ice hockey, and a fixed wrestling match. Some may wonder why I include a fixed wrestling match and place it above football, baseball, tennis and golf, especially in view of the fact that sports writers and sports fans generally are always warring against the practice of fixing or throwing a competitive sports match.

But the cry against fixed wrestling matches is raised by those who bet on wrestling matches. Their motives are not disinterested. They are more concerned with the outcome than with the match itself and their chief concern is in the money with which they have backed their judgment as to the winner.

Never having been a gambler on the outcome of competitive sports, I enjoy the sport itself with unalloyed motives. A fixed wrestling match is beautiful to watch. As if conscious that their show is going to be a disappointment to some, the wrestlers always put on a marvelous exhibition of acrobatics. They go through all their tricks. They assume fine plastic poses. They combine all the grace of vaudeville acrobats with the dexterity of jiu-jitsu demonstrators and to these they add at least the semblance of testing each other's skill in strength and cleverness at wrestling.

Part of New York's floating population, which really lives afloat is to be found on the coal, sand and rock barges anchored by the dozen at the foot of Coenties Slip in the East River. Here babies are reared, washes hung out, domestic tragedies and very dramatic enacted, in the very shadow of downtown New York skyscrapers.

Felix Riesenbergs novel of Manhattan, "East Side, West Side," introduced as hero as a product of this sort of existence, and a saint in the neighborhood of Coenties Slip might convince many a budding author that the material for many potential novels lies buried around these barges. The ancient sport of "howling on the green," a favorite pastime of the early Dutch settlers of New York, has been revived in Central Park. This was the same that Rip Van Winkle engaged in with the gnomes of the Catskills before he passed out on their liquor and on record for the longest time on record. Bowling Green, now the heart of the financial district, takes its name from the jolly sport of the first fathers, and it seems fitting that New York's first recreation should be renewed. Any clear day you may see venerable gentlemen, some with beards, disporting themselves in this leisurely play. This pastime is familiar to anyone who has traveled through rural France, where the courtyards of country inns, clerks, shopkeepers, and yokels gather to bowl.

The Coming of the White Man

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDA H. McCLONE GIBSON
LIPS

Old Ben Johnson said once that "A soft lip would tempt to an eternity of kissing."

In these days of lipstick the discreet young lover is very careful that his sweetheart's lips shall not touch his cheek, for it would leave the impress of her cupid's bow.

Our lips are not only useful in forming the doors of our mouth, but they are perhaps the most ornamental part of the face, not excepting the eyes. Eyes may bespeak love, but the lips figure in all matters of romance, and their sympathetic qualities make them real promoters of love and marriage.

The old Chinese proverb, "Speak no evil, hear no evil, see no evil," is especially appropriate for the woman who desires a pretty mouth, as no other muscles of the face are so flexible as those about the lips. Passions of rage, scorn or malice, if often indulged in, mark their presence about the lips and mouth in a way that cannot escape detection.

So cheer up. A smiling mouth will not only help to make happy those with whom you come in contact, but will keep away the ugly, drooping lines which destroy true and lasting beauty, a beauty that Father Time himself cannot obliterate.

To the student of physiognomy the mouth is the feature which represents passion, and it is thus the interpreter of the inclinations and appetites. Pride and passion contract it. Cunningness accentuates it. Debauchery enervates and betrays it. Love and passion incarnate themselves there with an inexpressible charm.

The size and form and color and texture combine to indicate the grade of development or refinement of character of the individual. The mouth does not only register the functions of digestion—it is also the principal organ of speech and is, therefore, by its size, an especial indication of the quantity, volume and quality of language.

When in motion the muscles about the mouth serve to reveal more of the character than when in repose, but must be studied together to read the individual correctly. It is from the mouth the voice issues, the great interpreter of the heart and the soul. Lavater believed that disproportion between upper and lower lips was a sign of folly and weakness, and that our wisest and best men have well proportioned upper and lower lips, and our sweetest and kindest women a soft expression that comes from sympathetic smiles.

Nemo—mouths speak before the tongue and can tell quite as much.

How to Achieve Beauty
BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Mouth Habits You Should Avoid
Your mouth is so plastic from the time you are a tiny baby kicking in your cradle that I feel I shall not have done this subject justice until I tell you a few of the dangers that certain habits have to your mouth beauty.

A mother should never give her baby anything to suck on that stretches its lips, nor should she allow sucking of thumbs. These habits make the mouth shapeless from an early age. Never breathe through your mouth, and especially don't sleep with it open. This makes it ugly and unwholesome. You can see this for yourself if you will notice children who have adenoids that have forced them to breathe through their mouths. Their lips become flabby, and the expression of the face is never pleasant. I do not need to tell you that disease germs enter the mouth much more easily than the nose. Gum chewing will make any mouth less attractive, as it tends toward too much relaxation. It is a very unattractive habit, and I have never been able to understand what pleasures it could give.

A man who says a thing can't be done should hear in mind that his testimony is entirely negative. In court negative testimony never gets as much weight as positive. If one witness says he heard a clock strike at a certain time, and another man declares that he didn't hear such a sound, the one who says he did hear is more likely to be telling the truth.

A man was lamenting his wife's extravagance—but more in sadness than in anger. "Her parents were thrifty Scotch folk," he explained, "and they failed to teach her proper business principles. She was taught only to save her money—never how to spend it intelligently."

Household Hints

BY MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT
One of the delights of cooking is trying experiments. Of course disasters occur. Not all experiments turn out successfully, but there is always a thrill in trying out something new and even women who have kept house for years and years enjoy doing this.

The salmon-croquettes in the following menu were an experiment and the housewife who thought of using them was pleased with the results.

Salmon Croquettes—Mashed Potatoes
Cabbage Salad Cheese Cake
Coffee

Today's Recipes
Salmon Croquettes—One can salmon, one egg, slightly beaten, one scant cup milk, two cups cornflakes. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Cook in hot fat until a golden brown.

Cheese Cake—Two cups cottage cheese, three eggs, two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons cream, one cup sugar, grated rind of one lemon, one tablespoon cornstarch, pie crust. Cream the butter and sugar thoroughly together, add the eggs well beaten gradually, then the cottage cheese, lemon rind, cornstarch and cream. Beat thoroughly and bake in one large pie plate, lined with crust, or in individual tartlet pans. If baked in one large pan, bake from 30 to 45 minutes; if in individual pans, from 12 to 15 minutes, having the oven moderately hot, 350 to 375 degrees Fahrenheit.

To Lard—To introduce into lean meat, long, narrow strips of fat (salt pork or bacon).

Suggestions Use the Lid
If you are carrying a cake to a picnic or a church supper, use the lid of the box for the cake and the box itself for the lid, and you will have no difficulty in removing the cake from the box.

Apple Butter Sauce
Cut in thin slices, like shavings, two medium-sized tart apples, add two cups of water, half cup of granulated sugar and one tablespoon butter. Let come to a boil, then thicken with one tablespoon cornstarch. Keep boiling until apples become transparent. This takes about 20 minutes.

This sauce is delicious served with cottage pudding, deep apple pie, or apple dumplings.

MAPLE CREAM
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)
Dissolve one-half package gelatin in cold water. Pour over it one cup boiling maple syrup, being careful all the gelatin is dissolved. Add one cup scalded milk thoroughly beaten with two eggs. When it begins to stiffen add one pint whipped cream. Stir in gently until all is well mixed, then turn into mold that has been rinsed in cold water. Set on ice four hours before serving.

LAW NIPS PALMISTRY
NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Wall street is no place for a fortune teller, though fortune hunters throng the neighborhood.

Catherine Mitchell, a gypsy palmist, set up shop in the financial section and read a man's palm for $2. Catherine said the man's finance would elope with in the month with another.

The man happened to have been married for 18 years and had four daughters. He also happened to be Detective Wittenberg. That's how Catherine happened to be caught.

Behind The Scenes

In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—In his sphere as comptroller general of the United States, no job to turn up your nose at, either—J. Raymond McCarll is the most absolute boss in the federal government.

All bills against our Uncle Samuel must bear J. Raymond's "o. k." or Uncle Samuel doesn't pay 'em.

(J. Raymond has other duties, too, such as collecting Uncle Samuel's bills against other folks and adjusting claims and lots of things, but it's an "o. k." of expense accounts that he comes the nearest to unqualified omnipotence.)

Time was—before we had a comptroller general—when getting government bills "o. k." was rather too easy.

The "o. k." power was vested in several different individuals and a would-be collector with a pull—generally was able to find some one among them who could be induced to exercise it.

He might do it for a friend—out of sociability. He might be bullied. He might be made to see that it would be worth his while—with a view, for instance, to reappointment. Or, if he still balked, perhaps one of his superiors could be dug up, to over-rule him.

In fact, congress finally decided that "o. k." was being overdone and decided to put the brakes on.

Accordingly the post of comptroller general was created, and certainly no bobs were overlooked to make the incumbent as independent of everybody and everything, as the well-known hog in a cold storage warehouse.

He's named by the president, but, once in office, he serves for 15 years, in spite of fire, brimstone, and the worst freshets in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. Only death or successful impeachment proceedings can remove him.

He can't be reappointed, so he hasn't a second term to sit about.

He hasn't a superior. He has an equal. That he hasn't a friend goes without saying—when I considered that a large part of his job consists in ripping heck out of thousands upon thousands of expense accounts.

He can't be coerced. He can't be vetoed.

"Final and conclusive"—that's what the law says about his decisions.

J. Raymond McCarll is the country's first comptroller general. He's been head of the general accounting office since July, 1921.

The Coolidge administration has justified him.

The administration wanted $2,000,000 to repair Mississippi valley levees immediately—without calling an extra session of congress to make an appropriation.

McCarll ruled that the money isn't available.

Of course, in a literal sense it is in the treasury, but McCarll's judgment is that it can't be taken out—legally.

The administration's taking any way.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Unappreciated
What a different place this good old world would be if people appreciated it. If they ignored their neighbor's faults and thought only of their virtues. If children realized the sacrifices their parents make for them and parents were mindful of the many virtues of their children.

The woman who writes the following letter is forlorn for want of a little appreciation:

"Dear Virginia Lee, I am wondering if you could advise me in regard to my problems. I am 40 years old and have two children, one 20 years old and married, with two children, the other 12."

"Two years ago I took the T. B. in my hip bone. I spent over a year in hospital and am left a cripple. I came to my children's home on crutches, but am now able to go without them, but still crippled because the hip joint is stiffened."

"Now here is my problem: The children no longer want me to stay with them, and when I try to get work, people either think I am unable to work or else object to the child. I really am not able to do much work as I am doing here, but I have never had as much to do any place. Besides having the care of these grandchildren, who are both under two and one-half years old, I have done as many as three washings a week for them. I get nothing except what I and the boy eat and a place to sleep. We sleep on the davenport and can't go to bed until the others do, no matter how tired. I am getting all worn out and they have no mercy on me, always telling me it costs too much to keep me. I would give anything for a home where I would feel welcome."

MRS.F.

With all sympathy for you in your trouble, your son has a big family on his hands for a 20-year-old boy, hasn't he, a wife, two babies, a mother and younger brother? Isn't it just possible that he can't pay you anything under the circumstances nor provide a better place to sleep? It is too bad they are not more appreciative of what you do, however. As you have no money to advertise for work couldn't you speak to some friend—the pastor of your church, for instance, and ask him to make inquiries. There are many people who would be only too glad to have your help and would pay you well. Or you might get work in a restaurant or store where you could be employed during the day while the boy was at school and have a little furnished apartment or a couple of rooms. I will keep your letter on file in case I hear of anything.

Sunny-Bunny, Run-Away!
Mrs. Grey Rabbit held up her paws.

"Wait a minute, my dear Two-Legs! One question at a time, if you please! Tell! Tell! Tell! So you haven't met Sunny-Bunny. How strange! I thought everybody knew him!"

"Sunny-Bunny is my little son, the dearest little rabbit in the woods. As good as gold he is, if I do say it myself. He only has one fault, he will run away."

"Oh, dear me, that reminds me. He has run away! There's the answer to your first question. I am worried because I can't find my baby, and I was looking for him in the cabbage patch because one of my neighbors told me she saw him making tracks that way!"

"Well, if he is a little fellow he can't have gone very far," began Mrs. Grey Rabbit, interrupted him, after the habit of the wood folk.

"You don't know Sunny-Bunny!" wailed she, and once more tears trickled down her trembling pink nose. "He can leap through the leaves faster than anyone you ever saw—he scoots out of sight before one can twitch his whiskers!"

Mrs. Rabbit was growing excited, and Peter tried to think of something comforting to tell her. "You said Sunny-Bunny was clever. He will find his way back home, all right," he said, and smiled at Sunny-Bunny's mother.

Mrs. Rabbit refused to be comforted.

"He is, and would, if left to himself," sobbed she. "There is—" no short cut to the cabbage patch or the lettuce bed that he does not know. He could find his way home with his eyes shut and in the dark. 'Tis not that I am worried about. But he is only a baby. I would make a tender morsel for more than one blood-thirsty prowler of the fields.

"Foxy and Weasel and Skunk and, worst of the four, the Snake—that Lives-in-the-grass, these are a few of the enemies that he is in wait for unwary little rabbits!"

Only a few of the enemies that lie in wait for unwary little rabbits. "Even Rover, who lives with the Two-Legs, and Whitey, the barnyard cat, although their masters give them plenty to eat so that they never suffer from hunger, think it great sport to chase a baby bunny until he drops dead from fright even if he hops into a hole in the ground out of their cruel clutches."

Greenville Anxious To Even Score With Central

XENIA VICTORIOUS TWICE OVER DARKE COUNTY PASTIMERS

Visitors Here Friday Would Avenge Two Shut-Outs

Central High School's football squad, having weathered its opening game of the season in good shape, is concentrating on perfecting a forward passing attack as it is thought that the team which excels in the air, will emerge victorious in the fray with Greenville High School at Cox Memorial Athletic Field Friday afternoon.

Coach Vic Kolb was displeased with the showing of his squad in the first half of the Washington C. H. game and is demanding a better offense. Until this is forthcoming, the probable starting line-up is in doubt and several changes may be made.

Xenia and Greenville have met on the gridiron only three times in history. Athletic relations were opened between the two schools in 1922 when Central gave the big green eleven a 12 to 0 whitewashing. Greenville retaliated in 1924 by blanking the locals 27 to 0, but Xenia got the edge in 1926 by winning easily, 29 to 0.

Greenville lost only three men by graduation, Captain Nicholson, fullback; C. Miller, half, and Hankins, end, and has a veteran team, which is also exceptionally heavy. Thus Xenia's forward wall has its work cut out.

Along with the remaining eight men, Greenville has a squad of thirty-two inexperienced candidates, a number of whom have looked good. Greenville was held to a scoreless tie in its first game with Versailles this year, but showed improved form last week in trouncing the powerful Bradford team 19 to 6.

Greenville's starting lineup is uncertain as constant changes were made in the first two games, but it is said to be a safe bet that any team that starts, will average an easy 155 pounds. The ends are light and fast with a medium-sized backfield. The line from tackle to tackle averages 170 pounds and has been almost impregnable this season.

Greenville's "Big Green" team experienced its worst season in years in 1926 and will be out to avenge Central's overwhelming victory last season and even the score between the two schools.

MRS. WEAVER HEADS CAMPAIGN HERE FOR SPECIAL SCHOOL

Mrs. C. A. Weaver, president of Federated Parent-Teacher Association of the city, is chairman of the drive for funds for the Opportunity School. Her assistants are: Mrs. Lewis Clark, Spring Hill P. T. A.; Mrs. Herman Baxey, Orient Hill; Mrs. Lawrence Landroe, Central Hill; Mrs. Lawrence Landroe, McKinley. Each of these have appointed sub-chairmen and workers.

The one-day drive for $1,000 will be made next Tuesday, October 11, to provide one meal a day for the underprivileged children in the five schools of the city, Spring Hill, Orient Hill, McKinley, Central first grade and the Opportunity School. Since only a small amount of the fund is used for the lunches at the Opportunity School, it was decided to call the drive, "The P. T. A. Drive for underprivileged children of the public schools."

Headquarters of the drive will be in the Assembly Room of the Court House, and members of the P. T. A., will be there all day to receive reports and donations. Mrs. Weaver is urging unstinted cooperation from Xenians in the drive.

CHURCH WILL HOLD RALLY DAY SUNDAY

A "home-coming" and rally day will be held by Paintersville M. P. Church, next Sunday, October 9. Sunday School will be held at 10 o'clock, with the rally day program at 11 a. m. Dinner will be served at 12:30 in the basement.

Those attending are to bring a basket dinner. The Rev. C. A. Arthur will preach at 2 o'clock. Special music has been arranged for the program. The public is invited.

BOWLING

Fords won their eighth straight game in nine played so far this season, and further increased their lead in the Recreation League, by winning three games from the Lane Transfers in a league match Tuesday night.

Fords put together games of 928, 876 and 970 for a total of 2,774 and had a three-game margin of 287 pins. Winners had a narrow speak the middle tussle, winning by nineteen pins.

Arch Jeffries, Ford anchor man, accumulated 617 pins to lead his team. W. C. Horney had a nice series of 574 for the losers. Box score:

Fords	199	176	203
Berger	183	133	172
White	176	199	180
Gannon	179	157	200

YANKS MEET PIRATES IN FIRST WORLD SERIES GAME

FINED FOR ALLEGED ATTACK TUESDAY ON HIS BROTHER'S WIFE

Accused of attacking Mrs. Josephine Zimmerman, colored, wife of William Zimmerman, his half-brother, Bud Zimmerman was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to serve thirty days in the County Jail on a charge of assault by Mayor John W. Prugh Wednesday morning. He pleaded guilty.

Mrs. Zimmerman was also fined $15 and costs and committed to the County Jail in default of payment when she pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct.

Her husband is also confined in jail, having been recently committed by Mayor Prugh when he was unable to pay a fine of $100 and costs, imposed on a charge of selling liquor.

Bud Zimmerman, who had been making his home with the Zimmerman family, made the alleged attack Tuesday night, accusing the woman of having stolen $7 belonging to him, police say. She denied the accusation.

Patrolmen Fred Jones and George Robinson, and Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, summoned to their home off of E. Church St., placed Mrs. Zimmerman under arrest.

Mrs. Zimmerman was not seriously hurt but suffered painful bruises by being struck in the face several times and kicked, police say.

TRUCK DRIVEN ON LAWN IN ATTEMPT TO PREVENT CRASH

To avoid a rear-end collision with an auto driven by Miss Ruth Morgan, Shawnee St., an unidentified driver of a Ford truck, steered the machine up on the pavement, smashed through a hedge fence and brought the truck to a halt on the front lawn at the residence of May of John W. Prugh, 423 N. Galloway St., at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The front end of the truck was damaged and the heavy vehicle was pulled off the lawn with difficulty. Both machines were proceeding south on Galloway St. when the accident occurred, with the truck following in the rear. Miss Morgan attempted to turn home, an alley and joining the Prugh home, when the truck driver, seeing that a collision was impending deliberately veered to the left and vaulted the curb.

Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, investigated.

LEARNING WORK AS COUNTY OFFICER

Ozni Cornwell, recently appointed county road patrolman by Sheriff Ohmer Tate, is receiving instructions on the technicalities of his work from Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, and is learning the art rapidly under his tutelage.

Cornwell declares he is not unfamiliar with a motorcycle as he rode one for a time while serving overseas during the World war.

WEATHER IS COOL

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 5.—The first day of the world series dawned clear and cool here this morning. There was a football tang in the air and early risers donned topcoats.

"Cloudy and slightly warmer" was the official weather prediction this afternoon. There were no indications that rain would mar the opening clash between the Yankees and the Pirates.

MILLIONAIRE BEING SUED FOR DIVORCE

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—Charging gross neglect and cruelty, Mrs. Alberta Brown Thompson today had filed suit for divorce in Common Pleas Court here against Charles E. Thompson, 57, millionaire aircraft manufacturer.

Thompson is president of Thompson Products, Inc., and was also formerly president of the Glenn L. Martin Company, both aircraft concerns of Cleveland. His wife charges that he has "habitually preferred the society of other women," and that his "violent abuse drove her to great fear and apprehension in March, 1927, in particular."

They were married in New York in May, 1919.

AWARD CONTRACTS HERE FOR PRINTING FOR ELECTION DAY

Contract for supplying poll books, cards of instruction and other equipment for the November 8 election in Greene County, was awarded to the Johnson and Watson Co., Dayton, O., by the board of elections at its meeting Tuesday night.

The Dayton firm submitted low bid of $374. The Columbus Blank Book Co., was the only other bidder.

The Aldine Publishing Co., this city, submitted the low bid for printing approximately 50,000 ballots to be used at the election, and was awarded this contract. One other local bid was received.

Election board will hold its next meeting Thursday, October 13 to select judges and clerks for the forty-seven precincts.

Printing of the ballots will not begin until October 8 as all candidates are permitted thirty days after the final date of filing petitions of candidacy, in which any withdrawals may be filed with the board.

GO-ED HEADS GLASS

DELAWARE, Ohio, Oct. 5.—Miss Olive Root, Annapolis, Md., is the first go-ed ever to be elected to a class presidency at Ohio Wesleyan University. Election results, announced today, showed she was chosen to head the senior class by a single ballot.

James Glancy, of Barborton, star halfback, was elected junior class president, and Eugene Dawson, Lakewood, heads the sophomores.

APPLE, No. 56284 a prisoner now confined at the London Prison Farm, has been recommended to the OHIO BOARD OF CLEMENCY, by the Superintendent and Chaplain as worthy of consideration for Parole. Said Application will be for hearing on or after November 15, 1927. W. C. THOMAS, Act'g Parole and Record Clerk. (10-5-12-19.)

CLIFTON

Dr. and Mrs. Harris were called to Tyrone, Pa., last Tuesday night to the bedside of Miss Mabel Harris, who died Friday morning. They returned on Saturday.

Miss Mabel Harris, aged 51, who was born in Clifton, soon after her father, Dr. E. C. Harris commenced practice as a physician here, was buried Monday afternoon in Ferncliff Cemetery, Springfield. She left her sister, wife of Rev. Mr. Sprer, of Tyrone, Pa., and her brother, Dr. J. Howard Harris, of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Corry and children, Gene and Kenyon, spent the week end in Seaman, Ohio, guests of Rev. and Mrs. Carl Gladfelter.

Mr. Mac Harris left last Tuesday for Cincinnati University, where he will take pre-medical work this year.

Mr. E. S. Kelly, of Whitehall, Yellow Springs, will show community pictures, taken at the community picnic here of the pageant given by the Girl Reserves and Bible school pupils, at the Opera House, the evening of October 18th. He will also show pictures of his foreign travels.

Springfield District, Dayton Presbyterial Society of Missions, will hold its annual meeting in Clifton Presbyterian Church, Friday, October 14th. Speakers will be Mrs. A. C. Adams, of Batavia, Africa, and Mr. Reid of Greenville, who will tell of India schools among the Navajos at Ganado, Arizona.

Rev. William Wilson and Elder W. Linn Wilson report a delightful time at the meeting of Dayton Presbyterial at Carlisle, O., near Middletown. Two splendid sermons were preached by Rev. Dr. Harriman, of Cedarville, O., there.

Dr. John Henderson, promoter of Xenia Seminary, occupied the United Presbyterian pulpit in the interest of the Seminary, last Sabbath.

John Moore leaned back in his seat and puffed slowly at the ceiling.

JOHN MOORE, New York business man, goes to Tucson, Ariz., on business, expecting to return to New York the next day. He meets a college associate, Philip Morton, who has business in Mexico. Both drink heavily of tequila and in the subsequent mixup in identity Moore finds himself in Mexico.

He has in his possession a portrait of a girl which had been Morton's. The girl, Ruth Henshaw, sends her ambassador, Ramon, to tell the supposed Morton that she will meet him at the church at Tubutama. She needs his help. He meets her, also, and all go to the ranch.

John meets Manuel Lopez, Rodriguez and Barton Henshaw, the uncle.

CHAPTER TWENTY.

"Poor devil!" mused John as he took his seat. "Henshaw is surely cowed." He tried to understand what Rodriguez was saying but the Spanish was much too rapid. He leaned back in his seat and puffed slowly at the ceiling. His game, as he saw it, was to sit tight and let them do all the talking they wished to do. Pleasant or otherwise. If, provoked by his tactfulness, they told him more than they intended to, that was their affair. He grinned to himself at that and blew a series of delicate little smoke rings at the point where the candle light faded into the shadows above the table. He was remembering other gossamer souls who had insisted on hurrying all they knew—and sometimes more—at the impassive front of Poker-Face Moore.

The torrent of angry Spanish ceased abruptly. Clench, opposite, stared at John uneasily and twisted about in his chair. John was conscious of it but he gave no sign of being so. He knew, to the exact instant when Manuel Lopez caught the sudden hush in the air and turned, expectant, to John. Then there stole upon him again that sense of loathsomeness unspeakable. He strove to fight it off, but still it persisted. What was it? He knew that Rodriguez was gazing at him with the whites of his eyes showing. And still he wondered—

It was Barton Henshaw's peevish voice which broke the silence. "Mr. Morton—"

"My name," interrupted John leisurely and very pleasantly, his eyes still following his smoke rings, "is Moore."

"We understand that, but between friends—"

"What you understand is your own concern. What you call me is mine. My name is Moore."

"Sure it is," broke in Clench with great affability. "What the devil difference does it make anyway? Moore, we can remember that."

Behind his mask Poker-Face Moore smiled to himself. "Tell the truth to fool a liar!"

"Very well," drawled Barton Henshaw peevishly. "But there are some of us here who aren't so particular—among friends—Mr. Moore. But letting that pass, the time has come when the Senator Rodriguez here thinks for the cards to go down on the table."

"Is the Senator Rodriguez dumb? Or did I only dream that I heard him using quite as good English as yours?" asked John, presumably of the ceiling.

"Bah!" the heavy voice of Rodriguez boomed. "Make him understand—"

"See here," whined Henshaw irritably, "I am trying to help you all if you will let me manage it."

The big Mexican subsided again into sullenness.

"Mr. Moore," went on Henshaw, "you have, of course, brought the proper credentials. If we could see them—"

John Moore let his gaze wander slowly down from the ceiling to drop like a plummet into the pale blue eyes of the speaker. Then he spoke with cold deliberation. "I carry no credentials," he said, and his lips seemed to curl with derision at this group of amateurs who expected such a thing.

Clench remembered suddenly the story Pedro had told him of the guns. What was the use of riling this man up unnecessarily? They knew all about him that they had to know. "Surely there is no need of credentials from Mr. Moore," he protested.

Rodriguez grunted. "It's the money we must have." But Henshaw clung to his point. "It was agreed about the credentials before Mr. Moore left New York. I don't see—"

John rose to his feet. He knocked the ashes from his pipe and put it in his pocket. "We will end this farce—now," he stated. "I understood you had something to tell me. It seems you wish to quarrel among yourselves. Go to it. But I have other ways of spending my evening."

He turned on his heel. His bored indifference to what they did was a thing of art.

Rodriguez was on his feet with a snarl for Henshaw. "If you let him go out there!" he threatened.

"Wait a minute, Mr. Moore," begged Henshaw. "We will waive the credentials. Please sit down. The Senator here is excited over a purely personal matter. It has nothing to do with you. You sit down too."

"See here," whined Henshaw irritably, "I am trying to help you all

What had he promised this great brute of a Mexican? Surely nothing in connection with his own niece! He couldn't be—John sat down. He was here to find out.

"Then get down to cases," he ordered peremptorily.

"Exactly," agreed Henshaw. "Clench, bring the papers."

Clench rose with alacrity and fetched from the buffet a brown leather portfolio. He extracted from this a map which he spread out before John Moore. "Here we are," he said. "Here's the border; here's El Paso, and here's Nogales." He placed two fingers across the large scale map. "And here are the mines—some mines!" They both grinned and winked as he shifted his fingers slightly. "Practically on the railroad—easy come, easy go!"

"Mr. Moore knows all that," said Henshaw impatiently.

"Not at all," said John coolly. "This is what I am here to find out. He bent over the map. "El Paso and Nogales. And you say the mines are here?"

Clench grinned still more broadly. "Sure! They're there. Real holes in the ground and silver in the holes they do say."

"You have never examined them yourself?" suggested John politely. He had located Tubutama—and here was the ranch marked.

"No," said Clench. "I don't fancy diving into a thousand feet of water."

"Just so," said John.

"Why we talk of the mines?" broke in Rodriguez.

"You yourself suggested getting down to cases—Mr. Moore," said Henshaw.

John Moore looked up at them. "We talk of mines because I am a mining engineer and interested—in these mines," he said.

"Sure he is," said Clench. "Mr. Moore is down here to sell us mining machinery and nothing else but!"

"Clearly put," said John.

"Bah!" said Rodriguez, "are you going to deliver to us ten thousand rifles and ammunition or—no?"

"Not!" said John Moore promptly, pleasantly firmly. "Nothing of the sort." And he smiled upon Clench through delicate rings of tobacco smoke.

Clench faced Rodriguez on the strength of that smile.

"Looky here. We're talking business with a business man. Mr. Moore is playing the game every minute—and get this! He's playing safe. Rifles? Not on your life! He's delivering to us ten thousand parts of mining machinery and—accessories—to be used in mines you can see on the map. He sticks to his onions. If we are sending—onions—to Central America—that's our business not his. Do I make it clear?"

"Much clearer," said John Moore. "If these gentlemen have anything definite to say about why I should deliver ten thousand parts of mining machinery—and accessories, to them I shall be glad to hear it."

"Certified checks on New York banks," said Henshaw. "That's definite enough, I suppose."

"Delivered of course—" said John Moore.

"At the border, upon receiving the machinery," interrupted Henshaw.

John Moore repeated as if he had not heard.

"Delivered of course—here. Within twelve hours. I am returning tomorrow morning. I think that's all gentlemen. With your permission, Mr. Henshaw, I'll join your niece in the garden and leave you gentlemen to discuss any matters you may wish to among yourselves."

Rodriguez leaned forward. "It is not permitted," he said. "In Mexico, only one man joins a lady in the garden at night—her fiancé, Señor." He tapped the table. "You will remain here, Señor. I!" And now he tapped his chest. "I am the Senator's fiancé."

John Moore's face did not change. He merely looked first at that thick tapping finger and then into the wicked little eyes above it. "You lie," he said evenly. "Both times."

Rodriguez lunged heavily to his feet.

"Keep still, you fool!" snarled Henshaw.

The big Mexican stood panting. "Then tell him yourself," he raged. "Tell him—now—here!"

John rose to his feet and looked coolly about the table.

"It seems after all that what you really wish to do is to quarrel among yourselves. We will continue this conversation in the morning."

Henshaw half arose as if to expostulate.

John looked at him. "Don't get up," he said dryly. "Take it easy. Good night." And he turned away and crossed leisurely toward the garden door.

They stared after him.

Clench cleared his throat. "Good night, Sir," he called. And though John did not catch it, there was admiration in Clench's tone. "Gosh!" thought Clench, "he's a cool one! For plain cold insolence he's got 'em both beat. And he's got the goods. He's the man for my money, I'll tell the world."

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D., AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

My Dear Followers:

When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to enclose a STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose TEN cents in stamps extra.

Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible. NOT OVER 200 WORDS, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE if you expect me to send you the information I have offered. — Lulu Hunt Peters.

The Origin of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children

Today is truly the day of the child, and we take for granted the welfare of children, from the federal government down to the smallest municipalities. We forget that we have not always had this thought for the children.

I was interested in reading an address by Dr. Philip Van Ingen on "Child Health in the Past"—especially the item on the founding of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

We had such society here until 1875. There was a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals founded in 1856, about ten years previous. Some years before the founding of the children's society, a mission worker, Mary Ellen, in the slums of New York, found a child who had been adopted when very young by two drunken, disreputable individuals who were treating her with great cruelty.

Mary Ellen was unable to get any action by appeals to the police or to any other authority, and she finally went to the S. P. C. A. Appeals of this nature had been made to them before, so the matter had to be referred to the learned legal council of the society who, after mature consideration, decided that the child was an animal, so the society could act. Shortly afterwards the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children was established, and Mary Ellen was the real though uncredited founder.

I'm going through Dr. Van Ingen's paper and abstract it for you:

Child Health Work

Child health work first began in Europe before it did here in America. The earliest activities for the child in this country were practically all done by religious societies chiefly through orphan asylums and founding institutions and were largely aimed at the child's soul rather than his body.

Child Labor

Education of the child was the next advance in child welfare, and this brought up the complication of child labor. Massachusetts was the honor of passing the first legislation regarding child labor, in 1826. It required that no child under 15 should be employed in any manufacturing establishment unless he attended some public or private school for at least three months during the year. In 1842, another law cut down the hours of labor for children under twelve, to ten hours a day! It was not until over fifty years later (in 1904) that the National Child Labor Committee was forced, and since then a constant general warfare has been waged against child labor.

More Recent Developments

The first children's court was established by Illinois in 1899. Now we have them in all large cities, along with child guidance clinics. Before that time, children truant from school were considered criminals, and in one state (Massachusetts) they were confined to the county jail and the time mercifully limited to one year!

Infant Mortality

The sickness and deaths among infants was so great during the summer, even so short a time as twenty years ago, that many cities opened special open-air hospitals. Milk was beginning to receive special attention, and in many cities milk stations were established. Much money was spent in pasteurization and modification of milk, and formulas which were handed out to mothers to suit the age of the baby, which was rarely seen. There was no medical supervision, no instruction of the mother, and no follow-up, and when the winter came most of the stations would close. Slowly the modern idea of the milk station as a permanent health center, came in. Today there are over 11,500 public health nurses. Twenty years ago there were only 900.

Pre-Natal Care as a Factor in Reducing Infant Mortality

Twenty years ago, in 1908, when prenatal care began to receive attention, and slowly the maternity hospitals began to face the problem and pre-natal clinics were formed.

Medical Inspection in Schools

Medical inspection in schools was begun in 1892, when New York City appointed one lone medical school officer. The first work of trained nurses in the schools was in New York ten years later. The school work, up until recently, was in a sense negative. We were trying to find out things that were wrong already. We were not trying to build up a sound system of education of the individual in the habits of health. But it was not really until the war that such procedures were generally adopted.

"Are we really using every opportunity to do a complete job?" Dr. Van Ingen asks. "Will the next generation laugh, with reason, at us for being stupid? What is our next step?"

BRINGING UP FATHER

BY SIDNEY SMITH

The Theater

The Shakespeare Association of America has been formed to produce throughout the United States the plays of William Shakespeare at what are known as popular prices. Its purpose is to create an organization along the lines of the London and Stratford Players in Great Britain, an influence it has pressed its distinct mark on the history of the modern English stage.

As its star the association has selected Fritz Leiber and has surrounded him with a cast of the best classic players available. Mr. Leiber's ideas of Shakespearean production will have important weight on the policies of the association, "Shakespeare," he says, "was the supreme poet and dramatist. In the twenty years he was in harness he wrote, wholly or in part, thirty-seven plays that still stand as the greatest dramatic works in our language by the greatest poetic genius of all time. We produce our Shakespeare to move people to tears or laughter, to make the plays play."

Being a screen comedienne and a good one is nine ways to Sunday harder than being a screen tragedienne is the opinion of Constance Talmadge, one of the foremost feminine laugh makers. "It's a lot easier to just let yourself go and be tragic," says the junior Talmadge, "than it is to be genuinely funny. In tragedy you give vent to your emotions, in comedy you must suppress them. Comedienne must provide necessary subtle touches, the all important 'timing' and just the right shading and gradations to their work. It's just too odd how so many young screen comedienettes as soon as they begin to get anywhere, dash into drama. Heaps of girls have started in screen comedy work, but only two or three have remained. I'm one of them."

According to Hollywood, the Oriental beauty, with her rich perfumes, sleepy eyes, and carmine lips, is coming back into style. Dorothy Mackail used brown lip rouge in a movie. Chester Conklin and W. C. Fields, flimdom's newest comedy pair, got their training for the strenuous life of the movies as circus performer and vaudeville juggler, respectively.

SECOND COMING OF CHRIST SUBJECT OF EVANGELIST HERE

On these things we are all agreed. The evangelist took up some things upon which opinions of Christians do not agree.

"Some think that the millennium is already here and that we are living in it now. The speaker disagreed with these and proved that the millennium (period of universal righteousness) is not here. "We have many conveniences and much advancement in science," he said, "but not very much righteousness."

"Others think that years, decades and ages possibly will pass away before the millennium comes—that the world will gradually become better and better until it will be wholly or almost entirely converted and then after passing through this wonderful period of the millennium, Jesus will come in judgment and the end of the world will be here. There are passages in the Bible which seem to favor this view, but on the other hand there are other passages that are hard to reconcile with it.

"Others think—that Christ will come before the millennium and reign on earth or over it from His throne in heaven.

"No matter, my friend, you can be a Christian and think one way or another, the fact that He is coming is fundamental and not the time or method of His coming."

"Before His coming Anti-Christ will come and win away many earnest followers of Jesus Christ. Christ will come at 'any moment' and indications are that he will come soon. Because—

"First—Jesus said: 'This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness and then shall the end come.' It looks like that has been done, and if it has not been it will be very soon. The doors of every country are open.

"Second—Jesus said that in the day of His coming it would be like it was in the days of Noah, and there was sure some fast life going at that time! And Paul says in so many words that the last days perilous times shall come, and evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse. Things are worse and worse today," declared the speaker.

"Third—Jesus indicated that there would be a revival among the Jews. Such a revival is going on today."

Dr. Biederwolf declared in favor of the "any moment" theory in his closing remarks and based his appeal on Jesus' words "Be ye also ready for in such an hour as ye think not, the son of man cometh. Even so come Lord Jesus."

A congregation which filled the lower floors of the First M. E. Church heard Dr. Biederwolf, Tuesday evening. The Rev. Homer Grimes in charge of the singing introduced several features. The men of the choir sang a number. The Rev. L. A. Washburn led in opening prayer and Dr. H. B. McElree in the closing service. Mrs. J. C. Dodds and Mrs. Bayless Thompson sang a duet, "Just a Few More Years." J. Milton Kelly sang "Preciousness of Jesus." No offering was taken, sufficient funds having been raised for local expenses.

Following announcements were made—Wednesday evening, Young People's Night. The football team of the local high school will be guests of the evening. "Confess and Be Saved" was the subject announced. Thursday afternoon services were announced for Sunday, 10:30 a. m., 3:00 p. m., and 7:30 p. m.

Ms. Nellie Woods and children, of Sabina, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Beckman.

Quite a number of members of the M. E. Church, attended a reception Tuesday evening, for the Rev. W. N. Mantle and wife, who recently came here from Oxford Circuit.

WILL CONDUCT FIRE DRILLS AT SCHOOLS

Fire drills to test the efficiency of school children of the city in time of danger, will be arranged by Fire Chief William Hanftan as a feature of the Xenia Fire Department's program for local observance of Fire Prevention Week, proclaimed for October 9 to 15 by Governor Vic Donahey.

In the annual campaign to educate school children as well as the public against fire dangers, Chief Hanftan, accompanied by several members of the department, will visit every school building in the city.

Local observance of the week also includes an inspection of the buildings in the business district for fire hazards. The inspection will begin October 9 and may not be completed for at least two weeks. It will be conducted by the fire chief and several assistants.

BASEBALL CLASSIC OPENS BEFORE HUGE PITTSBURGH CROWD

York club had previously been installed 7 to 5 favorites to win the series. Pennock who has never been beaten in a world series game was struck on the left leg just above the knee by a batted ball, and a blood vessel was ruptured. Physicians said the effect of the blow could not be fully determined until this afternoon. They said Pennock might possibly be able to pitch when the team opens in New York. The accident caused a near panic among the Yankees as Manager Huggins had been counting on Pennock for at least one victory, possibly two. Ice treatment was applied on Pennock's leg to keep the flesh from swelling. Even if he is able to pitch it was feared that the injury would lessen his effectiveness.

From all parts of the country fans are here to witness the first two games which will be played here today and tomorrow before the contending clubs entrain for New York to play three more, if many are necessary. The governor of Pennsylvania, John S. Fisher, the mayors of New York City and Pittsburgh, Judge Kene-saw M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, a hundred or more baseball celebrities and even One-Eyed Connelly, the famous gate crasher, are in town to see the spectacle.

Among the major and minor league managers present are Joe McCarthy of the Chicago Cubs, Wilbert Robinson, of the Brooklyn Nationals, Dave Bancroft of the Boston Braves, Dan Howley of the St. Louis Browns, George Moriarty of the Detroit Tigers and Ray Schalk of the Chicago White Sox. Among the ball players are Jacques Pournier, of the Braves; Max Carey, of the Dodgers; former captain of the Pirates, Bill McKechnie, one time Pittsburgh manager and Jack Onslow and Bill Engle of the Washington board of strategy.

To further enliven the occasion this afternoon a 22-piece band will be on hand, and so will the famous baseball comedians, Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, who promise a trans-Atlantic flying act in addition to new quips in golf and how to swim on the third base line. Mr. Altrock, his handsome face aglow with smiles, mingled with the baseball elite this morning attired in golf knickers, and seemed to be enjoying himself handing out ready-made repartee.

More than 400 baseball writers, from all parts of the country, have been assigned places in the press sections, or "dugout," directly back of the home plate. A network of wires, which carry every detail of play, has been out into this section. Radio apparatus has been set up for the broadcasting of the series direct from the park.

The fans converging on Forbes Field are evidencing the keenest interest in how the slugging of the famous Waner brothers, Paul and Lloyd, will compare with that of Babe Ruth and his home run twin, Lou Gehrig. It is as easy to start an argument on this question in Pittsburgh today as was on the "long count" question immediately after the Tunney-Dempsey fight.

Last minute arrests of ticket speculators were being made by the police this morning. Eighty-two sets of world series tickets were seized by detectives and six men were at liberty on forfeit after arrests on charges of violating a city ordinance. The authorities were planning to turn the seats over to Forbes Field officials to be sold at regular prices. The scalpers had been charging from $50 to $75 for $14.50 strips of tickets.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded, streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyneth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, for only 75 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyneth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By moving the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

After the regular meeting of the Pythian Sisters on Tuesday evening, September 28th, Mrs. Adah Thomas, M. E. C., led in discussing plans for various parties this coming winter, the dates of which will be announced later. The committee for the annual Halloween party promised something very unique and original this year. Those present enjoyed refreshments consisting of ice, cake and coffee. Every member is asked to be present at the next meeting when the delegates, Mrs. Warren Collette, Mrs. Foster Jenks and Mrs. Martha Tresslar, who also attended, will report the Grand Temple convention which was held last week in Newark.

Mr. Cyrus Lord, of Jamestown, N. Y., spent the past week as the guest of Mrs. Margaret Briggs and daughter, Marley. Mr. Lord is a Civil War veteran and has been attending the National G. A. R. encampment at Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mrs. Minnie Riggs and son, Jack, spent Sunday at the home of her father, C. N. Smith.

Mrs. Elizabeth Parker and Mrs. W. A. Thomas were hostesses, Friday afternoon, to the members of the Mystic Club. The guests enjoyed contests and other amusements provided by the hostesses. Mrs. John Baughn was elected to membership in the club, to fill the vacancy resulting from the resignation of Mrs. Robert Harmount, of Dayton.

Mrs. John C. Ferguson entertained the members of her bridge club on Thursday afternoon.

The Advance Club held the first meeting of this season, on Monday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. C. E. Thuma. The members present responded to roll call with vacation experiences.

Mrs. R. W. Zimmerman read a paper on the "Trend of Modern Poetry." Mrs. W. W. Johnson had prepared a paper on John Mansfield and Alfred Noyes. In her absence, Mrs. C. E. Thuma read the paper and also selections from the poems of these two writers. Mrs. Willis McDorman closed the program with the solo, "Trees," by Joyce Kilmer. Members of the program committee of the club were hostesses during a social hour following the program.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dunn and daughter, Jean, of Columbus, spent Sunday night with J. C. Ferguson and wife.

Rally Day was observed at the M. E. Sunday School, Sunday morning. There was a fine attendance to enjoy the promotion exercises and short program. Miss Anna Shigley, Miss May Harper, and Miss Mabel Soddors gave readings. The Misses Lela Thuma, Harriet Reeder and Betty Moorman accompanied by Miss Dorothy Fann, sang a trio and the Misses Clara Gordon and Miss Miller, accompanied by Miss Margaret Frazier sang a duet.

Friends here, especially members of the M. E. Church, where Rev. Calvin Horn served as pastor a few years ago, will be sorry to learn of the death of Mrs. Horn, which occurred at the Flower Hospital, Toledo, a week ago last Sunday. Mr. Horn is pastor at Swanston, Ohio, but the body of Mrs. Horn was taken to Mt. Vernon, Ohio, for burial.

Mrs. Martha Underwood of Jeffersonville, Mrs. George Little and Mrs. Nancy Glass spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Bryan.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Redding and daughter and Mr. Glenn Redding came from Dayton, Sunday, to visit Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Redding, who is very ill, suffering from pneumonia with complications.

Mrs. Osa Marshall spent Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Edgar Baker, of Xenia.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Hesse and family and Miss Mary Sutton spent Sunday in Prospect, O.

The St. John and Chatter Club was entertained on Friday afternoon by Mrs. John Collette. Mrs. Carl Buckles, of Xenia, was the only guest from out of town.

Neal Hunter, of Miami University, Oxford, was at home for the week end.

W. F. Harper and family were dinner guests Sunday, at the home of L. S. Farguhar, of London.

Mr. and Mrs. Presley Reeder, of Blaine, Mrs. Heister and Miss Donna Hester, of Dayton, were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reeder and family, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fields entertained Mrs. Anna Cummins and Mr. George Sanders, wife and son, Bobby, at dinner, Sunday.

Mr. Gay Patton and family moved last week, to the Stryker property, on East Xenia St.

Mrs. Levi Jenks, Miss Leontine Jenks and Misses Sara Brewer and Sallie Brown, of Yellow Springs, enjoyed a performance at Keiths, in Dayton, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Sutton, of Xenia, Mrs. Bagford and Mr. and Mrs. Garst, of Yellow Springs, were guests of W. A. Paxson and wife, Sunday.

Miss Eva Webb returned Wednesday from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jannings, of Dayton. On Monday evening Miss Webb was a guest at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gobel, of Oakwood.

Russell Knox has returned to Ohio State for his third year in the Electrical Engineering course.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Torley have returned to Lansing, Mich., after a brief visit with Mrs. Mary Turnbull.

Miss Margery Galvin was hostess at a dinner last Wednesday, in honor of the birthday of her mother, Mrs. Hulda Galvin. Mrs. Fred Zeigler and daughters and Mrs. William Page, of Wilmington, were guests.

Mrs. C. C. Moon, of Dayton, and Mrs. Newell Lewis, of South Charleston, visited relatives here, last Wednesday and Thursday.

Dr. and Mrs. Syferd returned Wednesday, from a two weeks' visit with relatives in Missouri.

M. I. Hilton and wife are spending the week in Connersville, with their son, Delvin Hilton and wife and with relatives in Richmond. Miss Alice Stryker has charge of the store in their absence.

Willard Thuma and Milton Corey, of Denison University, at Granville, and Okie Vandine, of Ohio Northern, at Ada, were here for the week end at their homes.

Mrs. Cal Shane, of Dayton, spent Sunday with Mrs. Emma Shane.

Mrs. Fay Eberhart, of Dayton, visited friends here, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Wolfe, the Misses Alice Wolfe and Ida Haines, of Xenia, were guests, Sunday, of the Misses Alice and Minnie Stryker.

Miss Anna McDonald of the O. S. and S. O. home, visited Mrs. Milton Willey, Saturday. On Sunday, Mrs. Willey entertained Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Frank, of Hillsboro.

Mrs. Carrie Bardill, Miss Belle Nelberger, and Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Carpenter, were guests Sunday, of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Beale, at Port William.

Mrs. Hannah Rose, the widow of Dr. P. W. Rose, who died almost nineteen years ago, while he was a practicing physician here in Jamestown, died at the home of her son, E. J. Rose, of Wilmington, on Sunday morning. Funeral services were held in Wilmington on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock, with burial in Jamestown cemetery. Mrs. Rose was a member of the James-town Chapter of the Eastern Star having retained her membership during her years of absence from this place.

Mrs. W. W. Johnson was called to serve on the grand jury, this week.

Mrs. Polly Cline visited her home near Waverly, Ohio, over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Fenker and Mr. and Mrs. Will Sutton and daughter, Virginia, visited the Peck Dahlia Farm, at Lebanon, Sunday afternoon.

Dr. L. L. Gray and wife left Monday, for a ten days' trip. They will

HEALTH HINTS For Parents

The wise mother gives little heed to "diets" for her growing boy or girl, and worries not at all about their bowels. A little fig syrup gives all the help, and has none of the harm that's found in habit-forming laxatives.

Have you a boy or girl whose food doesn't seem to nourish as it should? Let them eat the same things, and just treat them to a daily spoonful of this rich, fruity syrup; watch them gain weight, see how their cheeks fill out and how appetite and assimilation improve! And a few drops will do remarkable things for an ailing infant. California Fig Syrup is a purely vegetable product, so parents need have no hesitancy in giving it to infants.

California Fig Syrup is not expensive; all dealers charge but sixty cents for a generous bottle. Just make certain that it is the California product; say "California" in asking for it.

Try California Fig Syrup two weeks on any child, and let his altered appearance and actions tell the full story! Adv.

ALLEGED RECKLESS AUTO DRIVER FINED IN PROBATE COURT

R. E. Richardson, Mechanic St., was fined $25 and costs Wednesday morning by Probate Judge S. C. Wright when he appeared in court and changed his plea to guilty to a charge of reckless driving, in connection with an auto accident on the Xenia and Springfield Pike, September 25. He paid the fine.

Richardson was arrested by Sheriff Ohmer Tate on an affidavit sworn out by Lawrence Davis, Springfield. Richardson's wife was reported to have been painfully hurt in the accident.

He had previously pleaded not guilty last Friday and his hearing had been fixed for October 7.

After entering the not guilty plea last week, the Xenian was released under orders to report to the sheriff of Fayette County to pay the balance of a fine recently inflicted on a similar charge in that county.

Sheriff Tate had received a criminal execution from the Fayette County Probate Court requesting Richardson's return to give an account for alleged failure to pay $90, balance due on the fine and costs.

What Doctors Think of the Laxative Habit

In all history, no Indian was ever known to have constipation. Nor need YOU. He chewed the bark of a tree called cascara. Today, we have the candy cascaret.

Cascaret the bowels never forms a laxative habit. If already formed, an occasional cascaret will usually break the habit. For cascara strengthens the muscular walls of the bowels, and their need of any aid at all grows constantly less. What other cathartics has this characteristic? The writer knows of none.

An evacuation brought gently about by cascara will, nine times in ten, be followed by full functioning of the bowels on the morning—and for days after. For there is no REACTION as with sickening salts, or any of the man-made purgatives that go through one's system like a bullet.

Physicians tell us cascara is the ideal laxative—and the tongue tells us candy cascarets are its form. At least a million know this: what a pity there any who don't! Especially children; because children love to use a cascaret. After which, for on-end, the bowels will be set work of their own accord.

The only habit from cascara that of regularity! Cascarets, and train the bowels. But at first sign of returning sluggishness another cascaret is as effective the first.

There isn't a druggist who has cascarets, so WHY experiment with laxatives?

YANKEES BEAT PIRATES IN OPENER

BASEBALL CLASSIC OPENS BEFORE HUGE PITTSBURGH CROWD

Two Thousand In All-Night Vigil—Ruth Big Attraction

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 5.—With the annual world series classic opening here today, Pittsburgh was a-tingle with excitement, its natives keyed up to a nervous tension approaching frenzy, fans here from all parts of the country and contending ball clubs, the Pittsburgh Pirates and the New York Yankee, restlessly awaiting the hour when they will don their spangles and go forth to battle.

Manager Miller Huggins of the Yankees announced this morning that he probably would pitch Waite Hoyt, a world series veteran, in the opening game, and Manager Donie Bush of the Pirates indicated he would send Ray Kremer to the firing line. Both are right-handers.

Fans stormed Forbes Field in droves long before the gates were scheduled to be opened at 10 o'clock this morning. The weather was cool, with a football tang in the air, and top coats were comfortable. The weather forecaster, however, predicted that it would warm up somewhat by game time, 1:30 this afternoon.

At dawn 2,000 dyed in the wool bleacher fans, who had kept an all-night vigil at the ball park, were strung out in long lines at the ticket gates. By 7 o'clock this morning fully 5,000 fans were fighting to hold their places against newcomers. All reserved seats had been sold and it is a certainty that a capacity crowd of 42,000 will witness the opening game.

The first man in line for a bleacher seat, and determinedly fighting to hold it, was Elmer Arden, a Pittsburgher who had been sitting astride a wooden box since 7:00 o'clock yesterday morning. Second in line was Lester McMichael, a youth from Connersville, Ind., who made a 350-mile trip by automobile to see the series. Next was William W. Walters, an ex-army veteran of Baltimore, who took precautions against inclement weather by bringing a pup tent. Following him was George Sliker, who came all the way from Worcester, Mass., to see Babe Ruth crash a homer.

Ruth, in fact, is the star attraction as far as the fans are concerned. Only once before has the great home run slugger been on the scene of today's conflict, and that was in an exhibition game. The natives are going to the game much in the manner of a crowd to a circus and in the back of their heads reclines the fear that the great home run slugger will break loose and spoil the show.

Betting odds changed at the eleventh hour, coming down close to even money because of the injury sustained by Herb Pennock, star sustainer of the Yankees, in batting practice yesterday. The New

SECOND COMING OF CHRIST SUBJECT OF EVANGELIST HERE

Christians Should Be Ready For Millennium
Says Biedermann

"Don't make a fool of yourself by trying to put a date on the Lord's coming. We have had enough of that already," Dr. W. E. Biedermann admonished his Tuesday night audience at the First M. E. Church, when he preached on "The Second Coming of Christ."

All signs point to an early coming of Jesus again to earth, the speaker said. "I am going to preach tonight about an event that is yet in the future, but will be more wonderful than the first coming of Christ and far more wonderful than all other events put together, and that is the Second Advent of Christ, or the fact that the Lord Jesus is coming back again to this earth."

"Now if the Bible speaks more clearly and emphatically about one thing than another, it is the certainty of the coming again of Christ to the earth. His coming again is mentioned 500 times in the Word of God. Paul alone mentions it fifty times; and every time you take communion, at the Table of the Lord you do show forth His death till He comes."

"The Bible does not say when He is coming again. He said of His coming 'Of that day and hour knoweth no man, neither the Son, but the Father.'"

When He comes—the dead in Christ shall rise, and all others living shall be caught up with Him, without dying. When He comes—the Christian shall receive his reward. When He comes—there will be a reunion of loved ones.

REPUBLICAN CHIEFS LOOK FOR AL SMITH TO LEAD "DEMMIES"

G. O. P. Convention Does Not Under Estimate New York Governor—Predict Either Dawes Or Coolidge

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The spectre of Al Smith hung over the Republican national committee's "open house" here today. Republican chieftains, assembled in Washington at the invitation of Chairman William M. Butler, for the most part were agreed that New York's popular governor looked to be the most likely Democratic presidential nominee and none of them was under-estimating his strength and public appeal. On all sides it was admitted that with Smith making opposition campaign the Republicans are in for a fight to continue control of the national administration.

The drawing powers of such outstanding figures as Vice President Charles G. Dawes, Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, former Governor Frank O. Lowden, of Ill., and former Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes were being weighed most carefully as the national committeemen entered the third day of their "informal meetings."

And as the search continued for an expression of sentiment sufficiently solidified to warrant the belief that a man had been found who could defeat Governor Smith, a little group of Republican elders opened up a whispering campaign that it would have to be "either

WIDOW IN JERSEY'S MURDER MYSTERY TO BE HEARD BY JURY

Mrs. Lillendahl Is Called Before Grand Jurors

HAMMONTON, N. J., Oct. 5.—Mrs. Margaret Lillendahl, principal figure in New Jersey's latest murder mystery, will be summoned before the grand jury tomorrow to tell the story of the slaying of her aged husband Dr. William Lillendahl, on an isolated road near here five weeks ago.

The widow who refused to revisit the scene of the murder and re-enact the tragedy, will be put through the ordeal of narrating in detail how her husband came to be found in his automobile on the lonely road, shot to death.

Assistant Prosecutor Cameron Hinkle, of Atlantic County, said today he would ask the grand jury for a murder indictment. He did not say against whom his request would be directed.

Mrs. Lillendahl contends her husband was shot to death by two men who attempted to attack her while she was driving with the physician. No trace has been found of Willis Beach, poultry farmer and confidant of Mrs. Lillendahl, who is wanted as a material witness in the case.

FEDERAL SOLDIERS SEARCH FOR GENERAL GOMEZ ON WARRANT

Alleged Leader To Face Court Martial If Captured

LAREDO, Texas, Oct. 5.—Further suppression by the Mexican government of all those connected with the revolutionary movement launched throughout the republic last Sunday night continued today with federal troops searching for General Gomez, who was charged in a presidential warrant with revolutionary activities in Mexico City and Vera Cruz.

According to reports from the Mexican capital if he is caught Gomez faces immediate court martial and probable execution unless he escapes to the United States. It is regarded probable that the precedent set by the government in the executions of General Serrano and his followers will not be altered in Gomez's case.

Gomez, with Serrano, was a candidate for the presidency on the "no re-elections" ticket. They both opposed General Varo Obregon, former president, who is a candidate on a platform that calls for a continuation of the policies of the Calles administration. Both men are said to have prevailed upon high army officers to desert the Calles government and swing the troops under them to the banner of the revolution.

While the government at Mexico City contended that the revolt amounted only to an uprising of small garrisons, reports given out by anti-Calles refugees in Laredo said that more than 3,000 troops had revolted in the capital and that President Calles is practically a prisoner. These reports were received with great reserve.

Reports here were that General Gomez might be attempting to reach Vera Cruz where he was formerly military governor and where he is said to have many strong followers. It is regarded possible that if he reaches there he may be able to muster sufficient force to hold the government troops in check for many weeks and may be able to set up a provisional government.

WOMEN STAND IN LINE FOR GAME TICKETS

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 5.—Two hours before the bleachers tickets for the first game of the Yankee-Pirates series went on sale at Forbes Field today the crowd at the gate became so great that three additional lines of ticket-purchasers were formed.

Some of the 5,000 fans in line at 8 o'clock took up their posts early as noon yesterday and there were many in the queues who had been standing since 8 o'clock last night.

Many fans in choice positions near the box offices offered to forego the privilege of witnessing the big series for a consideration of

JUNKERS PLANE OFF FOR AMERICA; SEEN OVER FRENCH COAST

Germans Will Land At Lisbon—Will Fly Over Azores.

CALAIS, France, Oct. 5.—An airplane, believed to be the Junkers trans-Atlantic plane which left Norderney yesterday afternoon, passed over Cape Gris Nez Lighthouse at 7:30 o'clock this morning.

BREST, France, Oct. 5.—The steamship Albert Le Borgne reported by wireless today that an airplane, believed to be the Junkers trans-Atlantic hydroplane, was sighted at 10 a. m., flying southward near the Armen Lighthouse.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—A German plane believed to have been the Junkers D-1230 on its way to Lisbon

WOMAN PASSENGER

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—The Junkers hydroplane which left Norderney yesterday afternoon for a trans-Atlantic flight, carried a woman passenger, Mme. Lily Dillenz, wife of Richard Dillenz, a Viennese architect, according to reports received here.

Before the hop off it was reported that a woman would make the flight, but when the machine hopped off yesterday no mention was made of any such passenger. Instead, it was stated that the machine carried four men—three pilots and a mechanic.

A dispatch from Vienna today stated that Mme. Dillenz had planned to make the trip and was believed to be on board. Mme. Dillenz is a painter, illustrator and actress.

The woman's father, Carl Heitler, a painter, when informed that his daughter was planning an airplane trip to America, expressed utmost surprise.

He was sighted at 6:55 a. m. today over Calais, according to an exchange telegraph dispatch from that city.

The plane disappeared to the west. Weather conditions were reported bad.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The Junkers hydro-airplane D-1230 which will attempt a trans-Atlantic flight to the United States by way of the Azores took off from Schellinowude, Holland, at 5:40 a. m., today, according to a Central Press news dispatch from Amsterdam.

The plane is expected to land at Lisbon before reaching the Azores. The first leg of the flight consisted of a flight from Norderney, Germany, to Amsterdam, a distance of 130 miles. Frederic Loose, who was in the monoplane Bremen, which made an unsuccessful trans-Atlantic attempt in August, is piloting the new plane.

GRAND JURY MEETS FOLLOWING RECESS

The October grand jury re-convened in Common Pleas Court Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock to resume consideration of a long list of cases on the criminal docket. None of the cases are of major importance.

It was expected that the jury would complete its work and make a full report Wednesday afternoon. Seven cases had been considered when the jury adjourned Monday and an equal number remained for examination Wednesday.

FORBES FIELD, Pittsburgh, Oct. 5.—A free-slugging baseball game went to the New York Yankees here this afternoon to give the American League team a victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates, National League champs the first leg on the World Series. The score was 5 to 4.

It was a meeting of two of the heaviest hitting teams in modern baseball, both having finished the season with team batting averages of .307. As a result the athletes played up to form, the Yanks driving Ray Kremer from the box in the sixth and Hoyt suffering a like fate in the eighth. Both teams scored in the first inning, Ruth making the initial counter of the series when he singled and his home-run mate, Gehrig, plated him with a triple. The Pirates scored in their half when Lloyd Waner was hit by a pitched ball, advanced to third on his brother's double and scored on Wright's sacrifice fly.

In the third Koenig was safe on an error, took third on Ruth's single, and Gehrig and Meusel walked, forcing in Koenig. Ruth batted first, P. Waner scored and Gehrig scored on a double steal. The Pirates scored once in this inning when Kremer doubled and scored on P. Waner's single. Koenig hit for two bases for the Yanks in the fifth, took second on Ruth's out and scored on Gehrig's sacrifice fly. Pittsburgh counted once in this stanza when L. Waner doubled and Barnhart plated him with a single. The Pirates threatened again in the eighth scoring once more.

FIRST INNING.
New York—Combs flied to Barnhart. Koenig struck out. Ruth singled down to Koenig. Gehrig tripled to right, scoring Ruth with the first run of the series. P. Waner camped under Meusel's high fly. One run, two hits, no errors.

Pittsburgh—L. Waner was hit by a pitched ball and went to first. Barnhart lined to Ruth. L. Waner batted first. P. Waner doubled along the right field foul line, his brother advancing to third. Wright hit a short fly to Combs. L. Waner scoring after the catch, and P. Waner taking third. Ruth made a fine run and catch of Traynor's long foul fly. One run, one hit, no errors.

SECOND INNING.
New York—Lazzeri hit a high foul to Traynor for an easy out. Dugan popped to Grantham. Collins walked. Hoyt out. Grantham to Harris. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Pittsburgh—Grantham walked. Harris hit a hot grounder to Lazzeri, who touched second and threw to first in time for the double play. Players of both teams swarmed around the umpire. Smith out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

THIRD INNING.
New York—Combs out. Grantham to Harris. Koenig reached first on an error by Grantham.

RADIO PARTY SUCCESS
Crowds in front of the Gazette Bldg., cheered lustily as the Yankees beat the Pirates in the first World Series game Wednesday afternoon.

They had just listened to a radio program arranged by The Xenia Gazette and heard Graham McNamee call the play by play story of the game so vividly as to almost suffice for not being present at Forbes Field.

Fans voted the radio party another huge success. It is to be continued each day during the series.

SEARCH FOR DOLE FLYERS FRUITLESS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The navy's search west of Hawaii for the missing Dole flyers has proved fruitless.

The mine sweeper Whippoorwill reported as follows to the navy department today:
"Thorough search of Johnson Island and vicinity just completed. No trace of lost Dole flyers found. The island is 750 miles south-west of Hawaii."

Ruth shot a single between first and second, sending Koenig to third. Gehrig walks. Meusel also walked forcing in Koenig from third. Lazzeri forced Meusel at second. Wright to Grantham. Ruth scoring on the play. In the double steal, Lazzeri started for second, and Gehrig for home. Smith threw to third and Traynor returned the throw. Gehrig scoring when the throw was relayed too late to Smith. Dugan flied out. Three runs, one hit, one error.

Pittsburgh—Kremer doubled against the right field barrier. Meusel gathered in L. Waner's long fly. Barnhart reached first on an error by Meusel. Kremer held second. P. Waner singled over second, scoring Kremer and advancing Barnhart to second. Wright grounded to Gehrig who tossed to Koenig, forcing P. Waner. Barnhart took third. Traynor batted to Koenig, who threw to Lazzeri, forcing Wright. One run, two hits, one error.

FOURTH INNING.
New York—Collins lined out to L. Waner. Hoyt raised an easy fly to P. Waner. Barnhart made a fine catch of Combs' long drive between left and center. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Pittsburgh—Gehrig retired Grantham, unassisted, making a fine pickup of his mean bouncer. Koenig made a difficult stop at third. Dugan bunted in front of the plate, forcing P. Waner. Smith popped to Lazzeri. No runs, no hits, one error.

FIFTH INNING.
New York—Koenig hit a two-base hit to right center. Ruth rolled to Grantham, who ran over and touched first. Koenig took second. Gehrig hit a long sacrifice fly to third. P. Waner scored all the way from second. Wright backed into left field to take Meusel's short fly. One run, one hit, no errors.

Pittsburgh—Kremer watched a third strike go by. L. Waner shot a two-base hit along the left field foul line. Barnhart singled past shortstop. L. Waner scoring. P. Waner singled off Hoyt's glove. Barnhart taking third. Wright flied to Combs. Combs also took Traynor's fly. One run, three hits, no errors.

SIXTH INNING.
New York—Lazzeri doubled over Barnhart's head. Miljus replaced Kremer in the box for the Pirates. Dugan bunted in front of the plate, and was tossed out at first by Smith. Lazzeri going to third on the sacrifice. Collins walked. Hoyt hit into a double play. Wright to Grantham to Harris. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Pittsburgh—Grantham went out to Gehrig, unassisted. Harris flied to Ruth. Ruth caught Smith's fly on the run. No runs, no hits, no errors.

SEVENTH INNING.
New York—Combs struck out. Koenig grounded to Harris and Miljus covered first to take the throw for a put out. Ruth singled to center. Ruth was caught between first and second, Miljus to Harris to Wright to Traynor. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Pittsburgh—Miljus fanned. Lazzeri tossed out L. Waner at first. Barnhart hit a long fly to Ruth. No runs, no hits, no errors.

EIGHTH INNING.
New York—Gehrig out. Miljus to Harris. Meusel was retired on strikes. Lazzeri grounded out. Traynor to Harris. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Pittsburgh—P. Waner drove a fly to Meusel. Wright hit safely over second. Traynor singled over second. Wright stopping at third. Wilkey Moore went in to pitch for the Yankees. Grantham forced Traynor at second, Koenig taking Gehrig's throw. Koenig was injured by Traynor coming into the base. Wright went to third on the play. Koenig was not seriously hurt and resumed his position.

Wright caught between first and second, Miljus to Harris to Wright to Traynor. No runs, no hits, no errors.

NINTH INNING.
New York—Dugan hit the first ball to Wright, who threw him out for first. Wright also tossed out Collins, making a nice stop and throw. Moore struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Pittsburgh—Brickell, batting for Miljus, went out, Moore to Gehrig. Combs took L. Waner's long fly. Lazzeri tossed out Barnhart at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

NEW OCTOBER JURY AWARDS JUDGMENT IN DAMAGE ACTION

After deliberating forty minutes, the October petit jury, which convened in Common Pleas Court Tuesday morning, returned a verdict for $200 damages in favor of Prudence M. Watson Tuesday afternoon in her damage suit against Frank Wilson, based on personal injuries suffered in an auto accident one-half mile west of Bellbrook August 4 at 9 p. m.

Mr. Watson sued for $1,000, charging that serious cuts about the face, have disfigured her for life.

The trial consumed the greater part of the day. The case was given to the jury at about 3:20 p. m. and a verdict returned at 4 o'clock.

Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy informed members of the petit jury before dismissing them, that he had been unexpectedly assigned to preside on the Cuyahoga County bench for the next four weeks by Carrington T. Marshall, chief justice of the Ohio Supreme Court.

For this reason the jury will not be called for service again until the second week in November, as no jury trials have been assigned for the intervening period. Judge Gowdy will leave for Cleveland Monday.

The damage suit of Prudence Watson was the first of three filed against Wilson, based on the same accident. Two others are pending and have not been assigned for trial, including an action filed by Harry Watson, the father, who asks $500 damages for injuries sustained by his son, Harry, Jr., and a third for $165 damages, including $150 for damage to his auto and $15 for medical expense.

Wilson was accused of carelessness and responsibility for the accident. The Watsons charged he turned off all his lights except the small parking lights in approaching their machine and that they were unable to see his car coming. Wilson was also accused of driving on the wrong side of the road.

The jury is composed of: Howard Hurley, Ernestine W. Green, Anna Banks, Catherine Osterly, Walter Graham, H. K. Hartsook, Ervin Harner, Perry Thomas, James Hite, C. D. Clayton, William Phillips and Pearl Bickett.

TRACTION COMPANY ABSOLVED OF BLAME

The Springfield and Xenia Traction Co. and employees on the car that struck the automobile of Mrs. Arthur Howard, near Yellow Springs, a week ago, resulting in the death of Margaret Howard, 7, were absolved from blame in the accident by Coroner F. M. Chambliss following an inquest in his offices Wednesday morning.

Jacob Bawser, motorman and John Shaw, another company employee, who were in charge of the car, were questioned as well as Charles E. Service, superintendent of the company, who questioned people living near Hyde's Crossing, where the accident occurred, but did not see the collision. Several testified that the motorman sounded the whistle of the car, however, "An unavoidable accident" was the coroner's verdict.

When to Suspect Acid Scalp

It isn't age that dulls the hair. Nor frequent washing or curling. If your hair lacks all life and lustre, it may be due to a condition you can correct in twenty-four hours. Acid scalp. Neutralize the acid secretions of the scalp and your hair will have the lovely sheen that makes any hair so attractive. A few drops of Danderine will do this; and as its name implies, Danderine is a scientific dandruff dissolver. Five minutes after Danderine is applied, every particle of dandruff has been dissolved! Acid scalp should be suspected if your hair is at all stiff or stringy, or won't hold a wave. Another sign—not so easily detected in the hair—is an acid odor to the hair when it is warm, or after exercise. And for thirty-five cents at any drugstore, you can get a bottle of Danderine that will keep your hair soft and sweet and "on its good behavior" for weeks!

ORIENT HILL P. T. A.

MAKES PLANS FOR DRIVE

Mrs. Herman Eavey, president, appointed her committee as part of the Federated P. T. A. organization in the one-day drive for funds to feed underprivileged children of the city, when Orient Hill P. T. A. met at the school Monday afternoon.

The social committee announced a community party, Friday, October 21, plans for which will be announced later. Mrs. John Beacham resigned as chairman of the ways and means committee and Mrs. Lee Roy Smith was appointed in her place.

In a short talk, Miss Rosetta Frazee, principal of Orient Hill, said the school seem to have improved this year, thanks to the work of the P. T. A. "We have gone in the homes and tried to show the mothers how to rear their little ones with the limited means they have," she said. She congratulated the Orient Hill P. T. A., on its work of helping the children. Miss Fannie K. Haynes of the Central High Faculty, told of her trip through Europe this summer, and recommended many amusing incidents of the tour.

DAYTON WOMAN GIVES

ART TALK TO CLUB HERE

The Junior Woman's Club had its first meeting of the season Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. D. Steele and began its year's work in a most delightful manner when Miss Faye Cleveland, teacher of English at Steele High School, Dayton, O., gave a charming talk on Italian Art.

She painted an interesting background for her subject by giving a brief historical and political sketch of Italy before taking her audience on a personally conducted tour of some of the most interesting and famous art treasures of this richest of all art countries. Her talk which she enriched with accounts of her recent visit to Italy was made especially delightful to her hearers by the use of many excellent photographs loaned by the Dayton Art Institute.

EVANGELIST SAYS

MAN MUST BE BORN

AGAIN TO BE SAVED

"Every child is born devoid of divine life. By nature, we are all children of wrath. Every man naturally is in a state of double deadness, dead by nature and dead in trespasses and sins. You may be courteous, refined, educated, but you are as devoid of salvation as a corpse in a graveyard, until you are born again. These were among the statements of the Rev. W. R. Cain, evangelist at the Church of the Nazarene, Tuesday night.

He continued: "No matter how nice you are, you may be able to read, you may have all the accomplishments that this world can offer, but if you ever get to Heaven, you must be born again.

"The evidences of salvation are two-fold. First, there is the external evidence, or what we do. We do what we do, because we are what we are. If our external life measures up to God's standard we must have an inside reason.

"Second, the internal evidences, which is the witness of the spirit, the inside divine evidence that one has been made a new creature, that your appetites, desires and very nature has been radically changed. If one has really been born again, he will produce the fruits of the Spirit as set forth in Galatians, 5. John, the apostle, said that one 'born of God doth not commit sin' but will abstain from the very appearance of evil. The more you walk with God, the more perfect your hatred for sin.

"Again, one born of God will overcome the world and will have an affinity for the things of God and a vehement desire to do his will." Previous to the sermon, the Rev. Mr. Cain sang "The City Four-square," one of his own compositions. Services will be held each night this week except Saturday, at 7:30.

Fourth annual Beaver Creek Fall Fair will be held at the Knights of Pythias Hall in Beaver Creek Twp., October 13 and 14.

The fair is under the auspices of the vocational agriculture department of the Beaver Creek High School.

Prizes will be offered for all classes of farm products, including both old and new corn, wheat, oats, soy beans, small seeds, fruit, and vegetables. From the farm home prizes will be given on baked goods, canned goods, needle work, flowers, and school lunch.

Exhibitors will be divided into two classes, one class for adults and high school pupils, and one for the pupils of the grade schools. Entries made by pupils of the district schools will not compete with entries in the open class except for sweepstakes. Prizes will be given to the pupils for the individual entries.

In addition, prizes will be awarded to the district schools on the following basis: each entry will count one point, each first prize will count six points, each second prize will count four points, each third two points. The school receiving the highest total number of points will be awarded first prize as school district. This point basis is being used in order to facilitate the judging.

A program of stunts will be given each night of the fair. These stunts will be given by the various classes of the high school and the organizations of the community.

DOING YOUR SHARE

In a recent address on "Civic Leadership, Development and Responsibility," Samuel Insull, President of the Commonwealth Edison company, of Chicago, said:

"I hold that every man owes something besides his taxes to the community in which he lives. The more he has been favored mentally and materially by fortune, the more he owes. In discharge of that debt, he is under obligation to do for the community something that he does not get paid for, something that he does not make money by. His obligation to do this is not just a once-in-a-while obligation; it is a continuing obligation, and what he does in discharge of it should be limited only by his abilities and his opportunities."

"A true sense of civic responsibility springs from recognition of this obligation. Individual response to it produces the civic leadership that assures continuous, well balanced, symmetrical community development—the development that provides for social and spiritual needs, so to speak, as well as for the physical and material needs of a community."

"It is to the men of constructive vision that we owe the welding of this continent into one homogeneous whole—the greatest amongst the modern creation of empire. It is to this constructive class that we owe the development of our great communities and our great businesses, and from them you should draw your inspiration for taking your share of civic responsibility and community service."

AWAITING COMMAND

Aladdin had but to rub his magic lamp and immediately a slave appeared to do bidding.

The Arabian Nights have now been so far outdone that every man, woman and child in the United States has 900 slaves waiting at command. This means that, reckoned in terms of man-power, our 110 millions have, in the field of electricity alone, 100 billion man-power at their service. A new power house in New York City will alone deliver more than 10 million man-power.

These invisible slaves, far swifter and more obedient than the slaves of any Pharaoh or rajah, light our streets and homes, drive our chariots with a speed and safety unknown to the ancient world, sew our clothing with a swiftness and accuracy impossible to human fingers, sweep and dust, bake and boil, wash and iron, and stand ready to do a thousand other things that we have not yet asked them to do.

POLITICAL EXCITEMENT

President Coolidge eliminated himself as a candidate in 1928 because "he has the feeling that the country is getting tired of him and of the sameness of comfortable but not very colorful conditions."

Such is the opinion of Judson C. Welliver, widely known publicist, who has served both Presidents Harding and Coolidge as a confidential adviser.

Mr. Welliver, now editor of a Pittsburgh newspaper, also declares in the Review of Reviews that the President's famous "I do not choose" statement was intended as an unqualified renunciation of a 1928 candidacy and not, as has been conjectured, as a subtle means of leaving the way open for his drafting by the Republican convention. "The last thing in his mind was to have uncertainty about his meaning," it is added.

Of the several considerations which he says prompted Mr. Coolidge to deliberately forestall a probable renomination, Mr. Welliver counts as first the President's feeling that the public while recognizing the calm efficiency of his administration, is ripe for the excitement of heated political issues.

The Way of the World

WORTH LISTENING TO

A former U. S. senator, A. O. Stanley, speaking at the national Moose convention, tells us some straight facts. He says:

"There is a lack of human charity in the world today, a tendency toward acrimonious discussion and a disposition to evoke pain and terror and induce men to agree in political theory and religious dogma. This tendency is not progress but merely an innovation. It is a tendency toward darkness and not toward the light of a new dawn."

There is still much of that spirit in the world. There is even much of it in America. The senator, perhaps, is a bit pessimistic. Observers, despite much loose talk, must see that there is a growing spirit of tolerance in the world. It comes slowly—but it comes.

INNOVATION

How true it is that much which passes at first glance for progress proves to be merely innovation. Much reform might well move backward instead of forward.

WHY A DIARY?

A Wisconsin man, at 93, says he wishes he had kept a diary. The habit of keeping a diary has gone somewhat out of fashion. It should. What's the good of keeping a daily journal if you have nothing important to put in it? The time might better be devoted to doing jobs worthy of record.

ANY JOB

Trouble with most young fellows recently out of school is that they are looking for the "right sort of a job." Wrigley, gum king, who began work feeding horses for a few cents a day, tells youth to ask for a job without asking what it is and then tear into it. The main thing is to learn to WORK. Time enough after that to look for the right job.

INFORMATION

In an advertisement one reads these words: "If you ever hang up an information sign, be prepared to inform."

Few people have much accurate information. We all hate to admit we don't know. Ask the average man a question and he will pretend he knows the answer. Pride and vanity keep us from admitting ignorance. And yet, to admit ignorance makes a better impression than to stall at giving information which we do not have.

The world is in tremendous need of information—but be sure you have some to give before you hang up your sign.

The Daybook

OF A

New Yorker

By

Burton Rascoe

DAYBOOK

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Not content with being the mother of one of the greatest polo players of all time, Tommy Hitchcock, Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, senior, herself a fine horsewoman, is schooling a team of wealthy youngsters at Westbury, L. I. Among her pupils, who range in age from 8 to 15, are Julian Peabody, Thomas Le Boutellier, and Nancy and Devereaux Milburn. The Milburn children are the offspring of the renowned captain and back of the American International Four. This is the team which has just distinguished itself so signally in beating the British Army and India team challengers for the international cup. Possibly by the time Nancy Milburn is out of the teens, there will be an important polo team made up entirely of women.

The games I find most beautiful and most thrilling to watch are, in the order named: polo, yacht racing, ice hockey, and a fixed wrestling match. Some may wonder why I include a fixed wrestling match and place it above football, baseball, tennis and golf, especially in view of the fact that sports writers and sports fans generally are always warring against the swindle of fixing or throwing a competitive sports match.

But the cry against fixed wrestling matches is raised by those who bet on wrestling matches. Their motives are not disinterested. They are more concerned with the outcome than with the match itself, and their chief concern is in the money with which they have backed their judgment as to the winner.

Never having been a gambler on the outcome of competitive sports, I enjoy the sport itself with unalloyed motives. A fixed wrestling match is beautiful to watch. As if conscious that their show is going to be a disappointment to some, the wrestlers always put on a marvelous exhibition of acrobatics. They go through all their tricks. They assume fine plastic poses. They combine all the grace of vaudeville acrobats with the dexterity of jiu-jitsu demonstrators and to these they add at least the semblance of testing each other's skill in strength and cleverness at wrestling.

Part of New York's floating population, which really floats is to be found on the coal, sand and rock barges anchored by the dozen at the foot of Coenties Slip in the East River. Here babies are reared, washes hung out, domestic tragedies and dramas enacted, in the very shadow of downtown New York skyscrapers.

Felix Riesenbergs' novel of Manhattan, "East Side, West Side," introduced as hero as a product of this sort of existence, and a jaunt to the neighborhood of Coenties Slip might convince many a budding author that the material for many potential novels lies buried around these barges.

The ancient sport of "bowling on the green," a favorite pastime of the early Dutch settlers of New York, has been revived in Central Park. This was the same that Rip Van Winkle engaged in with the game of the Catskills before he passed out on their liquor and was blotto for the longest time on record. Bowling Green, now the heart of the financial district, takes its name from the jolly sport of the first fathers, and it seems fitting that New York's first recreation should be revived. One can see the pastime in this leisurely play. This pastime is familiar to anyone who has traveled through rural France, where the courtyards of country inns, clerks, shopkeepers, and yokels gather to bowl.

KELLYGRAMS

by Fred C. Kelly

Passing of the Cousin

Cousins seem to be much less in evidence than they once were. Not only have cousins but addressed them as Cousins. It was "Cousin Fred," do have more asparagus, or "How are Cousin Jim's hives?" Today one seldom hears a cousin referred to as such. Many thoughtful persons do not even know who their cousins are. Nor do they care. Sometimes I wonder if the cousin business won't peter out entirely. The chances are that this will be an improvement. Most people get sick and tired of having relatives thrust upon them and would like their cousins better as friends rather than as kinfolk. This is equally true of brothers and sisters. I am fond of my brother not because he is my brother but in spite of the fact. He often takes advantage of being my brother to become familiar, critical, and irritating. It is as a fellow human that he is most agreeable.

Another man and I spent an hour arguing over how to accomplish a certain piece of work the next day in the rain. Then we happened to look at the weather forecast, and found that on the next day there probably would not be any rain. I wonder how much time most of us thus devote to needless argument over problems that if left alone would settle themselves.

Before hiring a man on the strength of his letters of recommendation, it is well to remember that there is such a man as whom one might give a strong testimonial in order to get rid of him.

NEWS COMMENT AND VIEWS

The Coming of the White Man

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDA H. MCGLONE GIBSON

LIPS

Old Ben Johnson said once that "A soft lip would tempt to an eternity of kissing."

In these days of lipstick the discreet young lover is very careful that his sweetheart's lips shall not touch his cheek, for it would leave the impress of her cupid's bow.

Our lips are not only useful in forming the doors of our mouth, but they are perhaps the most ornamental part of the face, not excepting the eyes. Eyes may bespeak love, but the lips figure in all matters of romance, and their sympathetic qualities make them real promoters of love and marriage.

The old Chinese proverb, "Speak no evil, hear no evil, see no evil," is especially appropriate for the woman who desires a pretty mouth, as no other muscles of the face are so flexible as those about the lips. Passions of rage, scorn or malice, if often indulged in, mark their presence about the lips and mouth in a way that cannot escape detection.

No cheer up. A smiling mouth will not only help to make happy those with whom you come in contact, but will keep away the ugly, drooping lines which destroy true and lasting beauty, a beauty that Father Time himself cannot obliterate.

To the student of physiognomy the mouth is the feature which represents passion, and it is thus the interpreter of the senses. The upper lip translates our inclinations and appetites. Pride and passion contract it. Cunningness accentuates it. Debauchery enervates and befalls it. Love and passion incarnate themselves there with an inexpressible charm.

The size and form and color and texture combine to indicate the grade of development or refinement of character of the individual. The mouth does not only register the functions of digestion—it is also the principal organ of speech and is, therefore, by its size, volume and quality of language.

When in motion the muscles about the mouth serve to reveal more of the character than when in repose, but must be studied together to read the individual correctly. It is from the mouth the voice issues, the great interpreter of the heart and the soul. Lavater believed that disproportion between upper and lower lips was a sign of folly and weakness, and that our wisest and best men have well proportioned upper and lower lips, and our sweetest and kindest women a soft expression that comes from sympathetic smiles.

Nemo—mouths speak before the tongue and can tell quite as much.

Household Hints

BY MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

One of the delights of cooking is trying experiments. Of course disasters occur. Not all experiments turn out successfully, but there is always a thrill in trying out something new and even women who have kept house for years and years enjoy doing this. The salmon-croquette in the following menu were an experiment and the housewife who thought of using them was pleased with the results.

Salmon Croquettes Mashed Potatoes

Cabbage Salad Cheese Cake Coffee

Today's Recipes

Salmon Croquettes—One can salmon, one egg, slightly beaten, one scant cup milk, two cups cornflakes. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Cook in hot fat until a golden brown.

Cheese Cake—Two cups cottage cheese, three eggs, two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons cream, one cup sugar, grated rind one lemon, one tablespoon cornstarch, pie crust. Cream the butter and sugar thoroughly together, add the eggs well beaten gradually, then the cottage cheese, lemon rind, cornstarch and cream. Beat thoroughly and bake in one large pie plate, lined with crust, or in individual tartlet pans. If baked in one large pan, bake from 30 to 45 minutes; if in individual pans, from 12 to 15 minutes, having the oven moderately hot, 350 to 375 degrees Fahrenheit.

To Lard—To introduce into lean meat, long, narrow strips of fat (salt pork or bacon).

Suggestions Use the Lid

If you are carrying a cake to a picnic or a church supper, use the lid of the box for the cake and the box itself for the lid, and you will have no difficulty in removing the cake from the box.

Apple Butter Sauce

Cut in thin slices, like shavings, two medium-sized tart apples, add two cups of water, half cup of granulated sugar and one tablespoon butter. Let come to a boil, then thicken with one tablespoon cornstarch. Keep boiling until apples become transparent. This takes about 20 minutes.

This sauce is delicious served with cottage pudding, deep apple pie, or apple dumplings.

MAPLE CREAM

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

Dissolve one-half package gelatin in cold water. Pour over it one cup boiling maple syrup, being careful all the gelatin is dissolved. Add one cup scalded milk thoroughly beaten with two eggs. When it begins to stiffen add one pint whipped cream. Stir in gently until all is well mixed, then turn into mold that has been rinsed in cold water. Set on ice four hours before serving.

LAW NIPS PALMISTRY

NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Wall street is no place for a fortune teller, though fortune hunters throng the neighborhood.

Catherine Mitchell, a gypsy palmist, set up shop in the financial section and read a man's palm for $2. Catherine said the man's finances would elope with in the month with another.

The man happened to have been married for 18 years and had four daughters. He also happened to be Detective Wittenberg. That's how Catherine happened to get caught.

WILMINGTON, Del. Oct. 1.

FEATURES

Behind The Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—In his sphere as comptroller general of the United States, no job to turn up your nose at, either—J. Raymond McCall is the most absolute boss in the federal government. All bills against our Uncle Sam—must bear J. Raymond's "o. k." or Uncle Samuel doesn't pay 'em.

(J. Raymond has other duties, too, such as collecting Uncle Samuel's bills against other folks and adjusting claims and lots of things, but it's an "o. k." of expense accounts that he comes the nearest to unqualified omnipotence.)

Time was—before we had a comptroller general—when getting government bills "o. k.'d" was rather too easy.

The "o. k.'ing" power was vested in several different individuals and a would-be collector—with a pull—generally was able to find some one among them who could be induced to exercise it.

He might do it for a friend—out of sociability. He might be bull-dozed. He might be made to see that it would be worth his while—with a view, for instance, to reappoint. Or, if he still balked, perhaps one of his superiors could be dug up, to over-rule him.

In fact, congress finally decided that "o. k.'ing" was being overdone and decided to put the brakes on.

Accordingly the post of comptroller general was created and made a job which was overhauled to make the incumbent as independent of everybody and everything, as the well-known hog in a cold storage warehouse.

He's named by the president, but, once in office, he serves for 15 years, in spite of fire, brimstone, and the worst freshet in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. Only death or successful impeachment proceedings can remove him.

He can't be reappointed, so hasn't a second term to this about.

He hasn't a superior. He has an equal. That he hasn't a friar goes without saying—when considered that a large part of his job consists in ripping heck out of thousands upon thousands of expense accounts.

He can't be coerced. He can't be vetoed.

"Final and conclusive"—that's what the law says about his decisions.

J. Raymond McCall is the country's first comptroller general. He's been head of the general accounting office since July, 1921.

The Coolidge administration has just defied him.

The administration wanted $2,000,000 to repair Mississippi levees immediately—without calling an extra session of congress to make an appropriation.

McCall ruled that the money isn't available.

Of course, in a literal sense it is in the treasury, but McCall judged that it can't be taken out—legally.

The administration's taking anyway.

What the administration expects, when congress does meet is to get a bill passed declaring—some time after the money's extraction from the treasury—that extraction was legal—retroactive legislation, as they call it.

Congress undoubtedly will do it, but if it should happen not to somebody would have to punt $2,000,000 in a hurry, for it's a strictly irregular performance now, McCall having said so, no mistake about it.

Anybody who defies Comptroller General McCall, in that sphere of his, does it all his peril.

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Unappreciated

What a different place this good old world would be if people appreciated one another. If they ignored their neighbor's faults and thought only of their virtues, if children realized the sacrifices their parents make for them and parents were mindful of the many virtues of their children.

The woman who writes the following letter is for want of a little appreciation:

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am wondering if you could advise me in regard to my problems."

"I am 40 years old and have two children, one 20 years old and married, with two children, the other 12."

"Two years ago I took the T. B. in my hip bone. I spent over a year in hospital and am left a cripple. I came to my children's home on crutches, but am now able to go without them, but still crippled because the hip joint is stiffened."

"Now here is my problem: The children no longer want me to stay with them, and when I try to get work people either think I am unable to work or else object to the child. I really am not able to do much work as I am doing here, but I have never had as much to do any place. Besides having the care of these grandchildren, who are both under two and one-half years old, I have done as many as three washings a week for them. I get nothing except what I and the boy eat and a place to sleep. We sleep on the davenport and can't go to bed until the others do, no matter how tired. I am getting all worn out and they have no mercy on me, always telling what it costs to keep us. I would give anything for a home where I would feel welcome."

MRS.F.

With all sympathy for you in your trouble, your son has a big family on his hands for a 20-year old boy, has he, a wife, two babies, a mother, and a younger brother? Isn't it just possible that he can't pay you anything under the circumstances nor provide a better place to sleep? It is too bad they are not more appreciative of what you do, however. As you have no money to advertise for work couldn't you speak to some friend—the pastor of your church, for instance, and ask him to make inquiries. There are many people who would be only too glad to have your help and would pay you well. Or you might get work in a restaurant or store where you could be employed during the day while the boy was at school and have a little furnished apartment or a couple of rooms. I will keep your letter on file in case I hear of anything.

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent.

Sunny-Bunny, Run-Away!

Mrs. Grey Rabbit held up her paws.

"Wait a minute, my dear Two-Legs! One question at a time, if you please! Tch! Tch! Tch! So you haven't met Sunny-Bunny. How strange! I thought everybody knew him."

Sunny-Bunny is my little son, the dearest little rabbit in the woods. As good as gold he is, if I do say it myself. He only has one fault, he will run away.

"Oh, dear me, that reminds me. He has run away! There's the answer to your first question. I am worried because I can't find my baby, and I was looking for him in the cabbage patch because one of my neighbors told me she saw him making tracks that way."

"Well, if he is a little fellow he can't have gone very far," began Peter, but Mrs. Rabbit interrupted him, after the habit of the wild folk.

"You don't know Sunny-Bunny!" wailed she, and once more tears trickled down her trembling pink nose. "He can leap through the leaves faster than anyone you ever saw—he scoots out of sight before one can twitch his whiskers."

Mrs. Rabbit was growing excited, and Peter tried to think of something comforting to tell her.

"You said Sunny-Bunny was clever. He will find his way back home, all right," he said, and smiled at Sunny-Bunny's mother.

Mrs. Rabbit refused to be comforted.

"He is, and would, if left to himself," sobbed she. "There is —Definite proof that all women are not afraid of mice has been established by Miss Louise C. Dryden. A mouse was captured in her office by a watchman who was about to kill it, when Miss Dryden interceded. A lunch of cheese and crackers appeased the mouse and both remained in the office undisturbed."

no short cut to the cabbage patch or the lettuce bed that he does not know. He could find his way home with his eyes shut and in the dark. 'Tis not that I am worried about. But he is only a baby. I would make a tender morsel for more than one blood-thirsty prowler of the fields."

"Foxy and Weasel and Skunk and, worst of the four, the Snake-Lives-In-the-Grass, these are only a few of the enemies that lie in wait for unwary little rabbits.

"Even Rover, who lives with the Two-Legs, and Whitey, the barnyard cat, although their masters give them plenty to eat, so they never suffer from hunger, think it great sport to chase a baby bunny until he drops dead from fright even if he hops into a hole in the ground out of their clutches."

There, oh, where is my wandering boy? What dreadful thing has happened to him?"

Greenville Anxious To Even Score With Central

XENIA VICTORIOUS TWICE OVER DARKE COUNTY PASTIMERS

Visitors Here Friday Would Average Two Shut-Outs

Central High School's football squad, having weathered its opening game of the season in good shape, is concentrating on perfecting a forward passing attack as it is thought that the team which excels in the air will emerge victorious in the fray with Greenville High School at Cox Memorial Athletic Field Friday afternoon.

Coach Vic Kolb was displeased with the showing of his squad in the first half of the Washington C. H. game and is demanding a better offense. Until this is forthcoming, the probable starting lineup is in doubt and several changes may be made.

Xenia and Greenville have met on the gridiron only three times in history. Athletic relations were renewed between the two schools in 1922 when Central gave the big green eleven a 12 to 0 whitewash. Greenville retaliated in 1924 by blanketing the locals 27 to 0, but Xenia got the edge in 1926 by winning easily, 29 to 0.

Greenville lost only three men by graduation, Captain Nicholson, fullback; C. Miller, half, and Hankins, end, and has a veteran team, which is also exceptionally heavy. Thus Xenia's forward wall has its work cut out.

Along with the remaining eight men, Greenville has a squad of thirty-two inexperienced candidates, a number of whom have looked good. Greenville was held to a scoreless tie in its first game with Versailles this year, but showed improved form last week in a 19 to 6 victory over the powerful Bradford team 19 to 6.

Greenville's starting lineup is uncertain as constant changes were made in the first two games, but it is said to be a safe bet that any team that starts, will average an easy 155 pounds. The ends are light and fast with a medium-sized backfield. The line from tackle to tackle averages 170 pounds and has been almost impregnable this season.

Greenville's "Big Green" team experienced its worst season in years in 1926 and will be out to avenge Central's overwhelming victory last season and even the score between the two schools.

MRS. WEAVER HEADS CAMPAIGN HERE FOR SPECIAL SCHOOL

Mrs. C. A. Weaver, president of Federated Parent-Teacher Association of the city, is chairman of the drive for funds for the Opportunity School. Her assistants are: Mrs. Lewis Clark, Spring Hill P. T. A.; Mrs. Herman Eavey, Orient Hill; Mrs. Minor Monroe, Central and Mrs. Lawrence Landaker, McKinley. Each of these have appointed sub-chairmen and workers. The one-day drive for $1,000 will be made next Tuesday, October 11, to provide one meal a day for the underprivileged children in the five schools of the city, Spring Hill, Orient Hill, McKinley, Central first grade and the Opportunity School. Since only a small amount of the fund is used for the lunches at the Opportunity School, it was decided to call the drive, "The P. T. A. Drive for underprivileged children of the public schools."

CHURCH WILL HOLD RALLY DAY SUNDAY

A "home-coming" and rally day will be held by Paintersville M. P. Church, next Sunday, October 9. Sunday School will be held at 10 o'clock, with the rally day program at 11 a. m. Dinner will be served at 12:30 in the basement.

Those attending are to bring a basket dinner. The Rev. C. A. Arthur will preach at 2 o'clock. Special music has been arranged for the program. The public is invited.

BOWLING LEARNING WORK AS COUNTY OFFICER

Ozard Cornwell, recently appointed county road patrolman by Sheriff Ohmer Tate, is receiving instructions on the technicalities of his work from Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, and is learning the art rapidly under his tutelage.

Cornwell declared he is not unfamiliar with a motorcycle as he rode one for a time while serving overseas during the World war.

YANKS MEET PIRATES IN FIRST WORLD SERIES GAME

FINED FOR ALLEGED ATTACK TUESDAY ON HIS BROTHER'S WIFE

Accused of attacking Mrs. Josephine Zimmerman, colored, wife of William Zimmerman, his half-brother, Bud Zimmerman was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to serve thirty days in the County Jail on a charge of assault by May-John W. Prugh Wednesday morning. He pleaded guilty.

Mrs. Zimmerman was also fined $15 and costs and committed to the County Jail in default of payment when she pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct.

Her husband is also confined in jail, having been recently committed by Mayor Purgh when he was unable to pay a fine of $100 and costs, imposed on a charge of selling liquor.

Bud Zimmerman, who had been making his home with the Zimmerman family, made the alleged attack Tuesday night, accusing the woman of having stolen $7 belonging to him, police say. He denied the accusation.

Patrolmen Fred Jones and George Robinson, and Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, summoned to their home off of E. Church St., arrested Mrs. Zimmerman under placed.

Zimmerman had disappeared but was taken into custody by Robinson and Shagin Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Zimmerman was not seriously hurt but suffered painful bruises by being struck in the face several times and kicked, police say.

TRUCK DRIVEN ON LAWN IN ATTEMPT TO PREVENT CRASH

To avoid a rear-end collision with an auto driven by Miss Ruth Morgan, Shawnee St., an unidentified driver of a Ford truck, steered the machine up on the pavement, smashed through a hedge fence and brought the truck to a halt on the front lawn at the residence of May-John W. Prugh, 429 N. Gallows St., at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The front end of the truck was damaged and the heavy vehicle was pulled off the lawn with difficulty. Both machines were proceeding south on Gallows St. when the accident occurred, with the truck attempting to turn in an alley adjoining the Prugh home, when the truck driver, seeing that a collision was impending deliberately veered to the left and vaulted the curb.

Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, investigated.

WEATHER IS COOL
PITTSBURGH, Oct. 5—The first day of the world series dawned clear and cool here this morning. There was a football tang in the air and early risers donned topcoats.

"Cloudy and slightly warmer" was the official weather prediction this afternoon. There were no indications that rain would mar the opening clash between the Yankees and the Pirates.

MILLIONAIRE BEING SUED FOR DIVORCE

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5—Charging gross neglect and cruelty, Mrs. Alberta Brown Thompson today had filed suit for divorce in Common Pleas Court here against Charles E. Thompson, 57, millionaire aircraft manufacturer.

Thompson is president of Thompson Products, Inc., and was also formerly president of the Glenn L. Martin Company, both aircraft concerns of Cleveland. His wife charges that he has "habitually preferred the society of other women," and that his "violent abuse drove her to great fear and apprehension."

In March, 1927, in particular.

They were married in New York in May, 1919.

AWARD CONTRACTS HERE FOR PRINTING FOR ELECTION DAY

Contract for supplying poll books, cards of instruction and other equipment for the November election in Greene County, was awarded to the Johnson and Watson Co., Dayton, O., by the board of elections at its meeting Tuesday night.

The Dayton firm submitted low bid of $374. The Columbus Blank Book Co., was the only other bidder.

The Aldine Publishing Co., this city, submitted the low bid for printing approximately 50,000 ballots to be used at the election, and was awarded this contract. One other local bid was received.

Election board will hold its next meeting Thursday, October 13 to select judges and clerks for the forty-seven precincts.

Printing of the ballots will not begin until October 8 as all candidates are permitted thirty days after the final date of filing petitions of candidacy, in which any withdrawals may be filed with the board.

CLIFTON

Dr. and Mrs. Harris were called to Tyrona, Pa., last Tuesday night to the bedside of Miss Mabel Harris, who died Friday morning. They returned on Saturday.

Miss Mabel Harris, aged 51, who was born in Clifton, soon after her father, Dr. E. C. Harris commenced practice as a physician here, was buried Monday afternoon in Ferncliff Cemetery, Springfield. She left her sister, wife of Rev. Mr. Speer, of Tyrona, Pa., and her brother, Dr. J. Howard Harris, of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Corry and children, Gene and Kenyon, spent the week end in Seaman, Ohio, guests of Rev. and Mrs. Carl Gladfelter.

Mr. Mac Harris left last Tuesday for Cincinnati University, where he will take pre-medical work this year.

Mr. E. S. Kelly, of Whitehall, Yellow Springs, will show community pictures, taken at the community picnic here of the pageant given by the Girl Reserves and Bible school pupils, at the Opera House, the evening of October 18th. He will also show pictures of his foreign travels.

Springfield District, Dayton Presbyterial Society of Missions, will hold its annual meeting in Clifton Presbyterian Church, Friday, October 14th. Speakers will be Mrs. A. G. Adams, of Batanga, Africa and Mrs. Reid, of Greenville, who will tell of India schools among the Navajos at Ganado, Arizona.

Rev. William Wilson and Elder W. Linn Wilson report a delightful time at the meeting of Dayton Presbyterial Church, Friday, October 14th. Two splendid sermons were preached by Rev. Dr. Harriman, of Cedarville, O., there.

Dr. John Henderson, promoter of Xenia Seminary, occupied the United Presbyterian pulpit in the interest of the Seminary, last Sabbath.

INSPIRED BY FRAGRANCE OF PIPE

CLEVELAND, O.—Judge Walker's march into Judge Kennedy's courtroom the other day, and, after making a long speech lauding his forceful personality, which penetrated the courtroom more surely than the perfume of a million gardens, presented him with a package. When Kennedy opened the package he found his 15-year-old pipe within, which he had left while in Judge Walker's office.

BRINGING UP FATHER

LADY CALLED FATE BY JOSEPHINE K. LITTLEJOHN

JOHN MOORE, New York business man, goes to Tucson, Ariz., on business, expecting to return to New York the next day. He meets a college associate, Philip Morton, who has business in Mexico. Both drink heavily of tequila and in the subsequent mixup in identity Moore finds himself in Mexico.

He has in his possession a portrait of a girl which had been Morton's. The girl, Ruth Henshaw, sends her ambassador, Ramon, to tell the supposed Morton that she will meet him at the church at Tubutama. She needs his help. He meets her, also Clench, an associate of her uncle, and all goes to the ranch.

John meets Manuel Lopez, Rodriguez and Barton Henshaw, the uncle.

CHAPTER TWENTY.

"Poor devil!" mused John as he took his seat. "Henshaw is surely cowed." He tried to understand what Rodriguez was saying but the Spanish was much too rapid. He leaned back in his seat and puffed slowly at the ceiling. His game, as he saw it, was to sit tight and let them do all the talking they wished to do. Pleasantly otherwise, if provoked by his tactfulness, they told him more than they intended to, that was their affair. He grinned to himself at that and blew a series of delicate little smoke rings at the point where the candle light faded into the shadows above the table. He was remembering other glibulous souls who had insisted on hurling all they knew—and sometimes more—at the impassive front of Poker-Face Moore.

The torrent of angry Spanish ceased abruptly. Clench, opposite, stared at John uneasily and twisted about in his chair. John was conscious of it but he gave no sign of being so. He knew, too, the exact instant when Manuel Lopez caught the sudden hush in the air and turned, expectant, to John. Then there stole upon him again that sense of loathsome, unspokenable. He strove to fight it off, but still it persisted. What was it? He knew that Rodriguez was glowering at him with the whites of his ugly eyes showing. And still he wondered—

It was Barton Henshaw's peevish voice which broke the silence. "Mr. Morton—"

"My name," interrupted John leisurely and very pleasantly, his eyes still following his smoke rings, "is Moore."

"I understand that, but between friends—"

"What you understand is your own concern. What you call me is mine. My name is Moore."

"Sure it is," broke in Clench with great affability. "What the devil difference does it make anyway? Moore, we can remember that."

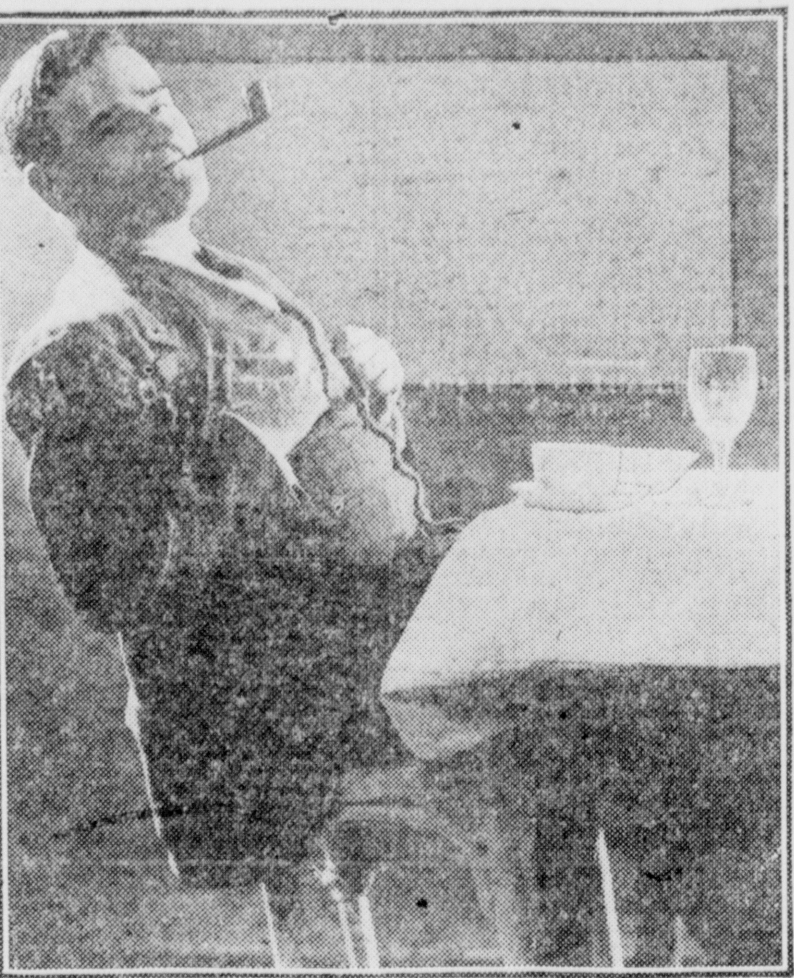

Behind his mask Poker-Face Moore smiled to himself. "Tell the truth to fool a liar!"

"Very well," drawled Barton Henshaw peevishly. "But there are some of us here who aren't so particular among friends—Mr. Moore. But letting that pass—the time has come the Senator Rodriguez here thinks for the cards to go down on the table."

"Is the Senator Rodriguez dumb? Or did I only dream that I heard him using quite as good English as yours?" asked John, presumably of the ceiling.

"Bah!" the heavy voice of Rodriguez boomed. "Make him understand—"

"See here," whined Henshaw irritably, "I am trying to help you all if you will let me manage it." The big Mexican subsided again into sullenness.

John Moore leaned back in his seat and puffed slowly at the ceiling.

"Mr. Moore," went on Henshaw, "you have, of course, brought the proper credentials. If we could see them—"

John Moore let his gaze wander slowly down from the ceiling to drop like a plummet into the pale blue eyes of the speaker. Then he spoke with cold deliberation. "I carry no credentials," he said and his lips seemed to curl with derision at this group of amateurs who expected such a thing.

Clench remembered suddenly the story Pedro had told him of the guns. What was the use of riling this man up unnecessarily? They knew all about him that they had to know. "Wait a minute, Mr. Moore," begged Henshaw. "We will waive the credentials. Please sit down. The Senator here is excited over a purely personal matter. It has nothing to do with you. You sit down too," he directed Rodriguez. "I promised you; don't act like a fool."

What had he promised this great brute of a Mexican? Surely nothing in connection with his own niece? He couldn't be— John sat down. He was here to find out.

"Then get down to cases," he ordered peremptorily.

"Exactly," agreed Henshaw. "Clench, bring the papers."

Clench rose with alacrity and fetched from the buffet a brown leather portfolio. He extracted from this a map which he spread out before John Moore. "Here we are," he said. "Here's the border, here's El Paso, and here's Nogales." He placed two fingers across the large scale map. "And here are the mines—some mines!" They both grinned and winked as he shifted his fingers slightly. "Practically on the railroad," he came, easy go!

"Mr. Moore knows all that," said Henshaw impatiently.

"Not at all," said John coolly. "This is what I am here to find out. He bent over the map. "El Paso and Nogales. And you say the mines are here?"

Clench grinned still more broadly. "Sure! They're there. Real holes in the ground and silver in the holes they do say."

"You have never examined them yourself?" suggested John politely. He had located Tubutama—and here was the ranch marked.

"No," said Clench. "I don't fancy diving into a thousand feet of water."

"Just so," said John.

"Why we talk of the mines?" broke in Rodriguez. "You've got to go down to cases—Mr. Moore," said Henshaw.

John Moore looked up at them. "We talk of mines because I am a mining engineer and interested—in these mines," he said.

"Sure he is," said Clench. "Mr. Moore is down here to sell us mining machinery and nothing else but!"

"Clearly put," said John.

"Bah!" said Rodriguez. "are you going to deliver to us ten thousand rifles and ammunition or—not?"

"Not!" said John Moore promptly, pleasantly firmly. "Nothing of the sort." And he smiled upon Clench through delicate rings of tobacco smoke.

Clench faced Rodriguez on the strength of that smile.

"Looky here. We're talking business with a business man. Mr. Moore is playing the game every minute—and get this he's playing safe. Rifles? Not on your life! He's delivering to us ten thousand parts of mining machinery and—accessories—to be used in mines you can see on the map. He sticks to his onions. If we are sending—onions—to Central America—that's our business not his. Do I make it clear?"

"Much clearer," said John Moore. "If these gentlemen have anything definite to say about why I should deliver ten thousand parts of mining machinery—and accessories, to them I shall be glad to hear it."

"Certified check on New York banks," said Henshaw. "That's definite enough, I suppose."

"Delivered of course—" said John Moore.

"At the border, upon receiving the machinery," interrupted Henshaw.

John Moore repeated as if he had not heard.

"Delivered of course—here. Within twelve hours. I am returning tomorrow morning. I think that's all gentlemen. With your permission, Mr. Henshaw, I'll join your niece in the garden and leave you gentlemen to discuss any matters you may wish to among yourselves."

Rodriguez leaned forward.

"It is not permitted," he said. "In Mexico, only one man joins a lady in the garden at night—her fiancé, Senor. He tapped the table. "You will remain here, Senor. I'll add now he tapped his chest. "I am the Senorita's fiancé."

He tapped himself again. Henshaw cursed softly.

John Moore's face did not change. He merely looked first at that thick tapping finger and then into the wicked little eyes above it. "You lie," he said evenly. "Both times"

Rodriguez lunged heavily to his feet.

"Keep still, you fool!" snarled Henshaw.

The big Mexican stood panting. "Then tell him yourself," he raged. "Tell him—now—here!"

John rose to his feet and looked coolly about the table.

"It seems after all, that what you really wish to do is to tell among yourselves. We will continue this conversation in the morning."

Henshaw half arose as if to expostulate.

John looked at him. "Don't get up," he said lightly. "Take it easy. Good night." And he turned away and crossed leisurely toward the garden door.

They stared after him.

Clench cleared his throat. "Good night, Sir," he called. And though John did not catch it, there was admiration in Clench's tone. "Good night," he called. "He's a cool one! For plain cool insouciance he got 'em both beat. And he's got the goods. He's the man for my money, I'll tell the world."

Diet and Health BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D. AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

My Dear Followers:

When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to enclose a STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose TEN cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, NOT OVER 200 WORDS, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.—Lulu Hunt Peters.

The Origin of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children

Today is truly the day of the child, and we take for granted the various agencies we have for the welfare of children, from the federal government down to the smallest municipalities. We forget that we have not always had this thought for the children.

I was interested in reading an address by Dr. Philip Van Ingen on "Child Health in the Past"—especially the item on the founding of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

We had no such society here until 1875. There was a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals founded in 1866, about ten years previous. Some years before the founding of the children's society, a mission worker, Mary Ellen, in the slums of New York, found a child who had been adopted when very young by two drunken, disreputable individuals, who were treating her with great cruelty. Mary Ellen was unable to get any action by appeals to the police or to any other authority, and she finally went to the S. P. C. A. No appeals of this nature had been made to them before, so the matter had to be referred to the learned legal council of the society who, after mature consideration, decided that the child was an animal, so the society could act. Shortly afterwards the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children was established, and Mary Ellen was the real though uncredited founder.

I'm going through Dr. Van Ingen's paper and abstract it for you:

Child Health Work

Child health work first began in Europe before it did here in America. The earliest activities for the child in this country were practically all done by religious societies chiefly through orphan asylums and founding institutions and were largely aimed at the child's soul rather than his body.

Education of the child was the next advance in child welfare, and this brought up the complication of child labor. Massachusetts has the honor of passing the first legislation regarding child labor, in 1826. It required that no child under 15 should be employed in any manufacturing establishment unless he attended some public or private school for at least three months during the year. In 1842, another law cut down the hours of labor for children under twelve, to ten hours a day. It was not until over fifty years later (in 1904) that the National Child Labor Committee was forced, and since then a constant general warfare has been waged against child labor.

More Recent Developments

The first children's court was established by Illinois in 1899. Now we have them in all large cities, along with child guidance clinics. Before that time, children truant from school were considered criminals, and in one state (Massachusetts) were confined to the county jail and the time mercifully limited to one year!

Infant Mortality

The sickness and deaths among infants was so great during the summer, even so short a time as twenty years ago, that many cities opened special open-air hospitals. Milk was beginning to receive special attention, and in many cities milk stations were established. Much money was spent in pasteurization and modification of milk, and formulas which were handed out to mothers to suit the age of the baby, which was rarely seen. There was no medical supervision, no instruction of the mother, and no follow-up, and when the winter came, most of the stations would close. Slowly the modern idea of the milk station as a permanent health center, came in. Today there are over 11,500 public health nurses. Twenty years ago there were only 900.

Pre-Natal Care as a Factor in Reducing Infant Mortality

Twenty years ago, in 1908, pre-natal care began to receive attention, and slowly the maternity hospitals began to face the problem and pre-natal clinics were formed. Medical inspection in schools was begun in 1892, when New York City appointed one lone medical school officer. The first work of trained nurses in the schools was in New York ten years later. The school work, up until recently, was in a sense negative. We were trying to find out things that were wrong already. We were not trying to build up a sound system of education of the individual in the habits of health. But it was not really until the war that such procedures were generally adopted.

"Are we really using every opportunity to do a complete job?" Dr. Van Ingen asks. "Will the next generation laugh, with reason, at us for being stupid? What is our next step?"

Allison Landaker has received a promotion which places him in the main offices of the C. and E. I. Railroad, at Chicago, Ill.

Central High boys are sporting new hats, white with a blue band and X. H. S. on band in white felt.

A novel feature is being suggested for the homecoming in Xenia next year. When the parade is held, it is proposed to have a Smith brigade, allowing only persons named Smith to march in it.

Meetings of the Ohio Synod of the Presbyterian Church here next week will be held at the First Presbyterian Church.

The Theater

The Shakespeare Association of America has been formed to produce throughout the United States the plays of William Shakespeare at what are known as popular prices. Its purpose is to create an organization along the lines of the Stratford Players in Great Britain, an influence that has pressed its distinct mark on the history of the modern English stage.

As its star the association has selected Fritz Leibler and has surrounded him with a cast of the best classic players available. Mr. Leibler's ideas of Shakespearean production will have important weight on the policies of the association, "Shakespeare," he says, "was the supreme poet and dramatist. In the twenty years he was in harness he wrote, wholly or in part, thirty-seven plays that still stand as the greatest dramatic works in our language by the greatest poetic genius of all time. We produce our Shakespeare to move people to tears or laughter, to make the plays play."

Being a screen comedienne and a good one is nine ways to Sunday harder than being a screen tragedienne is the opinion of Constance Talmadge, one of the foremost feminine laugh makers. "It's a lot easier to just let yourself go and be tragic," says the junior Talmadge, "than it is to be genuinely funny. In tragedy you give vent to your emotions, in comedy you must suppress them. Comedienne must provide necessary subtle touches, the all important 'timing' and just the right shading and graduations to their work. It's just too odd how so many young screen comedienne as soon as they begin to get anywhere, dash into drama. Heaps of girls have started in screen comedy work, but only two or three have remained. I'm one of them."

According to Hollywood, the Oriental beauty, with her rich perfumes, sleepy eyes, and carmine lips, is coming back into style. Dorothy Mackaill used brown lip rouge in a movie. Chester Conklin and W. C. Fields, filmdom's newest comedy pair, got their training for the strenuous life of the movies as circus performer and vaudeville juggler, respectively.

On these things we are all agreed." The evangelist took up some things upon which opinions of Christians do not agree.

"Some think that the millennium is already here and that we are living in it now. The speaker disagreed with those and proved that the millennium (period of universal righteousness) is not here. "We have many conveniences and much advancement in science," he said, "but not very much righteousness."

"Others think that years, decades and ages possibly will pass away before the millennium comes—that the world will gradually become

WILL CONDUCT FIRE DRILLS AT SCHOOLS

Fire drills to test the efficiency of school children of the city in time of danger, will be arranged by Fire Chief William Hanftan as a feature of the Xenia Fire Department's program for local observance of Fire Prevention Week, proclaimed for October 9 to 15 by Governor V. Donahue.

In the annual campaign to educate school children as well as the public against fire dangers, Chief Hanftan, accompanied by several members of the department, will visit every school building in the city.

Local observance of the week also includes an inspection of the buildings in the business district for fire hazards. The inspection will begin October 9 and may not be completed for at least two weeks. It will be conducted by the fire chief and several assistants.

BIEDERWOLF PROGRAM

Wednesday evening—Young People's Night—"Confess Christ and Be Saved."

Thursday afternoon—3:30 p. m.—The Jew—Evening, 7:30 p. m.—The Jew—The Unpardonable Sin.

Sunday—10:30 a. m.—3:00 p. m.—7:30 p. m.

better and better until it will be wholly or almost entirely converted and then after passing through this wonderful period of the millennium, Jesus will come in judgment and the end of the world will be here. There are passages in the Bible which seem to favor this view, but on the other hand there are other passages that are hard to reconcile with it.

"Others think—that Christ will come before the millennium and reign on earth or over it from His throne in heaven."

"No matter, my friend, you can be a Christian and think one way or another, the fact that He is coming is fundamental and not the time or method of His coming."

"Before His coming Anti-Christ will come and win away many earnest followers of Jesus Christ. Christ will come at any moment and indications are that He will come soon. Because."

"First—Jesus said: 'This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness and then shall the end come.' It looks like that has been done, and if it has not been it will be very soon. The doors of every country are open."

"Second—Jesus said that in the day of His coming it would be like it was in the days of Noah, and there was sure some fast life going at that time. And Paul says in so many words that the last days perilous times shall come, and evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse. Things are worse and worse today," declared the speaker.

"Third—Jesus indicated that there would be a revival among the Jews. Such a revival is going on today."

Dr. Biederwolf declared in favor of the "any moment theory" in his closing remarks and based his appeal on Jesus' words "Be ye also ready for in such an hour as ye think not, the son of man cometh. Even so come Lord Jesus."

A congregation which filled the lower floors of the First M. E. Church heard Dr. Biederwolf, Tuesday evening. The Rev. Homer Grimes in charge of the singing introduced several features. The men of the choir sang a number. The Rev. L. A. Washburn led in opening prayer and Dr. H. B. McElree in the closing service. Mrs. J. C. Dodds and Mrs. Bayless Thompson sang a duet, "Just a Few More Years." J. Milton Kelly sang "The Preciousness of Jesus." No offering was taken, sufficient funds having been raised for local expenses.

Following announcements were made—Wednesday evening, Young People's Night. The football team of the local high school will be guests of the evening. "Confess and Be Saved" was the subject announced. Thursday afternoon subject "The Jew." Three union services were announced for Sunday, 10:30 a. m., 3:00 p. m., and 7:30 p. m.

NEW JASPER

The Greene County traveling library has installed very interesting books. The books are available to anyone who is welcome to them. The books will be changed every two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Gorge Huston, Belmont, were guests over Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Shirk.

Mr. and Mrs. Doc Thompson, New Vienna, spent a week with their nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Humphrey.

Mr. and Mrs. William Badger and family, Dayton, were guests over Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Press Thornhill.

Rally Day services will be held at the New Jasper M. E. Church, Sunday, October 8.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Anderson entertained as Sunday dinner guests: Mr. and Mrs. William Leenhout and daughter, Mabel; Mr. and Mrs. Mont Compton and family; Mrs. Larva Leenhout, all of Washington, C. H.; Mrs. Harvey Fields and son, Allen, Clifton Pike, Mr. and Mrs. O. Shirk.

Mr. and Mrs. Cary Holton, Bellbrook, were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wood.

Mr. Frank Butts and family moved to the O. M. Spahr place last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford Latham, Jamestown; Mr. and Mrs. Ross Latham, Blainville, were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. Otis Carter and son, Harold.

Miss Grace Fudge entertained the "Who Do" Class last Friday evening at her home. The Young Men's Bible Class was also entertained. A covered dish supper was served.

Mrs. Nellie Woods and children, of Sabina, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Beekman.

Quite a number of members of the M. E. Church, attended a reception Tuesday evening, for the Rev. W. N. Mantle and wife, who recently came here from Oxford Circuit.

What Doctors Think of the Laxative Habit

In all history, no Indian was ever known to have constipation. Nor need YOU. He chewed the bark of a tree called cascara. Today, we have the candy cascaret.

Cascaret the bowels never forms a laxative habit. If already formed, an occasional cascaret will usually break the habit. For cascara strengthens the muscular walls of the bowels, and their need of any aid at all grows constantly less. What other cathartics has this characteristic? The writer knows of none.

An evacuation brought gently about by cascara will, nine times in ten, be followed by full functioning of the bowels on the morrow—and for days after. For there is no REACTION as with sickening salts, or any of the man-made purgatives that go through one's system like a bullet.

Physicians tell us cascara is the ideal laxative—and the tongue tells us candy cascara is its form. At least a million know this; what a pity there any who don't! Especially, because children love to take a cascaret. After which, for on-end, the bowels will be set work of their own accord.

The only habit from cascara that of regularity! Cascara's and train the bowels. But at first sign of returning sluggishness, another cascaret is as effective as the first.

There isn't a druggist who has cascara, so WHY experimenting with laxatives?

HEALTH HINTS

For Parents

The wise mother gives little heed to "diets" for her growing boy or girl, and worries not at all about their bowels. A little fig syrup gives all the help, and has none of the harm that's found in habit-forming laxatives.

Have you a boy or girl whose food doesn't seem to nourish as it should? Let them eat the same things, and just treat them to a daily spoonful of this rich, fruity syrup; watch them gain weight, see how their cheeks fill out and how appetite and assimilation improve!
